THE EDITOR SAYS—

A housewife has asked us to say that the place for hucksters and peddlers to sell thir produce is at the kitchen door instead of the front door. Most housewives are to be found in the kitchen in the morning hours and dislike to answer the front door bell.

And did our face get red! Last week a four-line paragraph in The Standard stated "why go without when you can get panties for 10c". Well, in our visiting rounds we dropped into this place of business and several of the sales girls gathered around and presented us with a pair of dainty pink ones, then remarked, "and is his face red". It seems like a fellow never gets too old to be slightly embarrassed at times.

Sally Rand is certainly good to me! One of the finest specimens of art in our gallery came from Kansas City Monday evening and now occupies a prominent place among other works. It is done in water colors, handsomely framed and is beautiful to behold. There was not even a bubble to hide the curves.

The Sunset school opened Monday, and Tuesday when the editor visited out there, 104 pupils had enrolled, 15 of whom were in the High School. A cleaner looking and better dressed bunch of pupils will not be found in any school in this section. Mighty good work is being done by these teachers to make these boys and girls useful citizens. Self respect is the foundation of good citizenship and this is being impressed on the minds of these pupils.

Ex-President Wilson's daughter and President Roosevelt's daughter received divorces while they waited. "Incompatability" is the reason, whatever that is. After seeing the pictures of both men, it appears the reason should have been they wanted a younger man.

George E. Allen, member of District of Columbia's Governing Commission, spent two weeks "bumming" in the nation's bread lines. He wanted to find out personally about relief and employment. "The snootiest people on earth are running the federal relief agencies," he reported. He added he was convinced that 98 per cent of the people on relief want a job and are not willfully imposing on charity. The employment system is wrong from beginning to end, he said.

For the size of our colored population Sikeston has the largest per cent of Colored Reverends of any city in this section. Colored folks have more religion than any race of people known. It matters not how bad an actor some of them are, these colored preachers can touch a responsive chord in their makeup and bring forth ferent amens. Long may these preachers live and may God give them strength to carry on as they get little money to meet their needs.

No doubt by this time the Federal courts will have appointed the Conciliation Commissioners who will administer the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill in the different counties, and farmers who are thinking of taking advantage of this act should get in touch with this official and find out where they stand, and according to the latest interpretation farmers do not need to employ an attorney, as the commissioners will give all the advice that is needed. That the above bill will make Christians out of some of the mortgage companies which have heretofore demanded the last penny due them I had occasion to find out some days ago; a certain member of the Missouri Farmers' Association had been offered a loan by the Federal Land Bank in St. Louis which came within about $300 of covering the mortgage which is held by a life insurance company, and when the farmer asked the company to trim down its obligation in the above amount its answer was, "We want all that is due us or we will foreclose,' and to show that they weren't bluffing they began immediate court proceedings. In his desperation the farmer came to Columbia to talk things over witth me, and as soon as I got the facts I sent a wire to the above company in which I said that unless they called off the foreclosure proceedings, and presented a more reasonable attitude, we would proceed under the Frazier-Lemke Bill, and immediately they informed the farmer that the foreclosure proceedings would be postponed.—Wm. Hirth.

Anthony Kalitch, his wife and their son went to Chicago from Youngstown, Ohio, to see the World's Fair. They rented an apartment, placed $200 spare cash in a mattress and started out. But when time came to go home, they had forgotten the address. For two days police took them scouting, to no avail. Then they advertised and asked the landlady with a missing tenant to reply. They're safe home.

Semo Fire Fighters to Attend 2-Day School in Caruthersville

About ten men are expected to go from Sikeston to Caruthersville August 15 to attend the fifth annual short course fire school of the Southeast Missouri Fire Fighters' Association which will be held there for two days.

During the afternoon session August 16, John A. Young, Siksteon fire chief, will instruct a class in salvage demonstration to teach fire fighters methods which may be adapted to the needs of departments as determined by available equipment and man power.

After registration at the Caruthersville fire department headquarters, Victor Malloure, Caruthersville fire chief and president of the Southeast Missouri organization, will open the school. He will then introduce J. Burr Taylor, secretary of the Missouri State Fire Prevention Association in St. Louis, who will present preliminary instructions.

Following an address of welcome by D. D. Pinion, mayor of Caruthersville, the school will continue with a demonstration and discussion of electrical conductivity of fire extinguishing liquids by George C. Monroe of the Missouri inspection bureau and a discussion of fire problems and the utilization of fire blocks or miniature buildings led by M. I. Parker, also of the Missouri inspection bureau.

At the afternoon session August 15 Captain H. C. Ousley, of the Missouri Inspection Bureau, will instruct members of the association in hose and ladder evolutions, and Chief Harry K. Rogers, chief of the Western Acturial Bureau in Chicago, will demonstrate first aid and resuscitation.

Bfore dinner Raymond Schuermann of the State Inspection Bureau will conduct an engineer's school, and immediately following it the school will reconvene for a round table discussion of fire department problems with Mr. Rogers in charge.

At 8:30 o'clock that evening members of the Caruthersville fire department will present a special program at the drill tower.

The following morning will be devoted to instruction in first aid and resuscitation, inhalators, and gas masks by Mr. Rogers and by an inspector's school, during which men will be taken through a designated building and shown how to examine it.

That afternoon, after the salvage demonstration by Mr. Young and a hose and ladder evolutions at the drill tower presented by Captain Ousley, thre will be a business session at which officrs will be elected and a place chosen for the 1935 school.

Harry C. Young is secretary of the Southeast Missouri Fire Fighters' Association and Louis A. Perrett, fire chief of Bonne Terre, is vice-president.

Women Found Guilty Of Assault and Battery

When the thermometer reaches or exceeds 90 degrees, the percentage of assault and battery charges among men increases 68 per cent and doubles in the case of women, according to statisticians. This may be true. At any rate, the increasing frequency of minor battles in Sikeston is apparent.

Tuesday morning about fifty men and women who live in Frisco addition, went to the police court to learn the fates of two of their neighbors, Jewell Price and Thelma Ramsey, who were accused of assault and battery after George Praul had filed a complaint.

The two women had entered the Praul home that morning, dragged Mrs. Praul from it, and beat her. Because they had been "insulted", the women said, their action was justifiable. Mrs. Praul, with a blackened eye and scratches on her face and neck, disagreed. So did her husband.

After a trial, the women were found guilty of the charges by Judge W. H. Carter and were each fined $10 and costs.

Two Escape Injuries When Car Overturns

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Fish miraculously escaped severe injury early Tuesday evening when the car in which they were riding was almost completely destroyed after it had turned over four times on Highway 60, east of town.

Mr. Fish, driving his automobile, a 1932 Chevrolet coupe, east toward Charleston, his home, started to pass another machine soon after he left the outskirts of Sikeston.

Th operator of the other car, however, began at the same time to make a left turn, and when Mr. Fish continued to attempt to pass the other car, he saw a man walking on the left side of the highway.

Driving on, he managed to complete the pass by barely running over the side of the pedestrian's shoe and by sideswiping the front fender of the automobile. But since he had been forced to leave the pavement, he struck a culvert which caused a tire to blow out.

He managed to guide his car onto the highway again, but quick swervings and the condition of the tire made his car so unsteady that it turned over several times.

The car loss was almost complete, but Mr. and Mrs. Fish, tho' they were dazed and slightly bruised, were not hurt.

Scout Leaders Attended Meet Near Cape Monday

George W. Kirk, president of the Southeast Missouri Area Council of Boy Scouts and several Sikeston Scout leaders attended a meeting of Scout supervisors which was held Monday evening at the Cape Girardeau Troop 1 cabin located west of Cape of discuss plans for a fall memberschip drive. About forty men who live in the northern part of the area's territory were present.

Presiding at the session, Mr. Kirk led a discussion concerning a need for interesting more boys and Southeast Missouri residents in Scout work, and Cecil G. Morrison, Scout executive, reviewed the organization's activities during the last three years and mentioned plans for this fall and winter.

Men at the meeting decided to ask members of Boy Scout troops to arouse interest in Scouting among their contemporaries in order that more groups may be formed. There are now 790 Scouts registered in thirty-six troops of the area and six sub organizations with a total membership of eighty-seven boys.

Those attending also tentatively set the time of the fall roundup in Cape Girardeau for November though no definite date was set.

In addition to men from Cape Girardeau and Illmo, and Mr. Kirk, the following Scout workers of Sikeston were present at the meeting: A. M. Jackson, Joe Sarsar, David Keasler, Walter Rayburn, and G. H. Dover.

GIVEN TEN-YEAR TERM FOR HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Walter Gregory was sentenced to serve ten years in the penitentiary after he was convicted of highay robbery by a Pemiscot county jury Tuesday.

Gregory, charged with holding up a Portageville filling station attendant, was tried in Pemiscot county by Judge J. V. Billings of Kennett on a change of venue from New Madrid county.

James Flowers, who was accused of complicity in the same hold-up, had previously been given a ten-year prison term.

Miss Eunice Thomasson, who is attending the Teachers' College at Cape Girardeau, spent the weekend in Sikeston, the guest of Miss Nadine Sellards.

Truman Flays Opponents On Last Tour Of State

Confining his attack to the records of his opponents for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, Judge Harry S. Truman of Independence, in a talk here Wednesday night, discussed what he termed the "eleventh - hour" conversion of John J. Cochran of St. Louis to being a friend of the farmer.

He said that Cochran, as secretary to William L. Igoe, when the present head of the St. Louis police board was a representative in Congress, to former Senator Harry B. Hawes, and to the late Senator William J. Stone, had had eleven years experience in answering demands of farmers for relief written to his employers.

Also, for the decade or more in which Cochran had been in Congress as a member of the house, similar pleas had reached him occasionally, Truman said.

"More than twenty years elapsed from the time Mr. Cochran as secretary to Mr. Igoe first got information on farm woes until the vote was taken on the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill in 1929. In that time he had seen or was a party to countless petitions, memorials, debates in committee and on the floor of Congress, on farm relief.

"He received numerous copies of reports on continuously lessening farm income, measured against a vast concentration of wealth in other business activities. He saw farm tenantcy increase. He knew that farm mortgages were increasing rapidly He was a witness to lowered buying power of farmers. He saw poverty staring them in the face. After twenty-one years of this personal experience, he voted against the McNary-Haugen bill, the first great measure to reach Congress to relieve farm problems.

"He voted against this measure even while his present friend and advocate, William Hirth of Columbia, president of the Missouri Farm Bureau, was in Washington beseeching him to aid the farmer. Now Cochran alleges himself a friend of the farmer, while Hirth stands by to render first aid to him in his ambition to be a United States Senator.

"What does this unnatural alliance bode for the farmer? What does it mean to the great cotton industry of this city and to the farmers producing that great commodity on the farms nearby?

"Further than this. Mr. Cochran, when moves were made in the House to conform to the wishes of President Roosevelt to grant him emergency powers in the face of the chaos in which we were obscured following the Hoover administration, termed this relegation of power to the President in the emergency as 'cowardly.' Yet every great benefit the farmer has obtained from the national administration came by virtue of that grant of power.

"Every benefit they ever will obtain flowed from that same transfer of power that Mr. Cochran termed as 'cowardly'. The very idea that the farm should, like industry, receive an assured profit, arose out of the powers given President Roosevelt.

"Mr. Cochran now tells the voters he is a friend of the farmer. Where can he show one single bit of proof of that statement? His entire public career is colered with enmity toward the farmer, from his vote against the McNary-Haugen bill to his noted observation that 'the farmer is a fool; he can't help himself and nobody else should help him'."

Stating that a man will be known for the company he keeps, Truman said that Jacob L. Milligan, another opponent, was damned by his alliance with Senator Bennet C. Clark, who, he said, was an open enemy of the President and who boasted that he wished "engraved on his tombstone as his epitaph the fact that he had voted against the National Industrial Recovery Act."

"My two main opponents are tied into the same bundle of opposition to President Roosevelt and his policies of aid for the farmer and the common man. I cannot vision either of them, in view of the records they have in Congress, either being on the square with their pretensions of friendship for the farmer and the masses of us or with sympathy for President Roosevelt's concern for the worker.

"You farmers here who have obtained great benefits on cotton growing are asked to vote for a man who, with a flood of information at hand over two decades, would not stir to aid you and who manifested no sympathy with your plight until he became a candidate for the Senate and needed your vote. I was a farmer for twelve years. I saw farming, not from the marbled corridors of a Washington building, but from between the plow handles. I see it yet from that vantage point.

"Mr. Cochran, as a member of Congress, is now facing approval or disapproval of the President's plan to bring security to old age, to assurance of employment or pay to every worker when idle, and to efforts to extend home ownership in the United States. He says he is in favor of it, but the man who termed 'cowardly' the transfer of unusual powers to the President to cure evils when the country was prostrate may not be reckoned upon to stand staunchly by the President in view of the extraordinary legislation the President's plans will require.

"I stand four-square for any laws needed to abolish the truly terrible lack of proportion in the distribution of wealth. I know that this country is headed for destruction as long as 4 per cent of the people own 90 per cent of the wealth and millions of men and women are starving because the machine owners are allowed to absorb all the profits of machine and mass assembly."

Before Judge Truman spoke he was introduced to a large crowd by Mayor G. W. H. Presnell.

From here Judge Truman went to Portageville, Hayti, Steele, and Caruthersville, where he addressed voters on Thursday. Today he is scheduled to end his Southeast Missouri tour after speaking at Kennett, Malden, Dexter, and Poplar Bluff.

POWER COMPANY CUTS KENNETT LIGHT RATES

Officials of the Arkansas-Missouri Power Company announced Tuesday that they would reduce by 14 per cent electricity rates in Kennett and Caruthersville, beginning August 15.

On the day the rates become effective, the city of Kennett will advertise for bids for the erection of a municipal light plant, to be built partly with a $150,000 PWA loan.

Stoutly opposing the move, the power company has filed an injunction suit in the federal cour in Cape Girardeau to prveent construction of the plant. The city may file an answer before August 16.

ARCADIA VALLEY HOSPITAL TO BE DEDICATED AUGUST 5

The Arcadia Valley Hospital, reopening under the direction of the Sisters of St. Mary, who conduct the St. Mary's Hospital and the Firmin Desloge Hospital in St. Louis, as well as a number of other hospitals, will be dedicated Sunday, August 5th, by Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis. A band concert will precede the dedication ceremonies.

Speakers at the dedication will be Rev. Leo J. Steck of St. Louis; Doctor George Gay, chief of staff of the hospital, of Ironton; Judge Robert Rasche, Mayor of Ironton; Doctor S. C. Slaughter of Fredericktown; and Archbishop Glennon.

Solemn benediction will be given on the grounds of the hospital and the Vincentian Seminarians of Perryville, will sing the hymns for benediction.

Mrs. M. F. Sills of Metter, Ga., expelled from a Primitive Baptist church because she married a divorced man, has sued the pastor, elders and clerks of the church for $10,000 damages. She claims her reputation was damaged to that extent by her dismissal from the church.

Company K Prepared to Leave For Camp Clark

Members of Company K of the 140th Infantry, 35th Division of the Missouri National Guard are making final preparations for their trip to Camp Clark at Nevada, Mo., Saturday.

At the Armory Wednesday evening Captain Rufus R. Reed instructed his men on preparations for the fifteen-day encampment and advised them concerning equipment which they should take.

The men will assemble at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon in order that they may be able to leave at 1:30 on a special Missouri Pacific train for Camp Clark, via Charleston, DeLassus, and Bismark, where members of various Southeast Missouri companies will be met.

With about 3500 National Guardsmen at the camp, members of Company K will drill, execute maneauvers and otherwise demonstrate what they have learned in their training period during the year.

Besides officers and members of Company K, Major Harry E. Dudley of the 3rd Battalion of the 140th Infantry and Captain A. D. Sheppard, who commands Company I of Doniphan, will go to the camp from Sikeston.

On Wednesday morning, Captain Tanner C. Dye, supply officer, and Joe Cannon Jr., of Caruthersville, who came to Sikeston to accompany Captain Dye, left here to join the headquarters regiment at Cape Girardeau in order that they might entrain for camp.

Privates Laurence B. Adams Jr., Patrick H. Adams, James H. Bennett, Lewis H. Conley, Chester M. Conrad, Paul I. Engram, Amos W. Hargrave, Marion L. Johnson, Frank Litchford, Glenn W. Page, Glen J. Powers, Schuyler E. Reed, Melfred E. Taylor, Warren A. York, Isaiah M. Alliston, Ralph W. Armour, William R. Bennett, Don J. Burton, Orben L. Byrd, Edgar M. Byrd, Carl F. Campbell, Alford J. Cutrell, Maurice L. Cunningham, Clyde W. Dame, Raymond P. Dame, Dale Enterline, Jack M. Fitzgerald, Ralph H. Fulkerson, Berley W. Hamilton, Herschell E. Hamilton, Lawrence A. Higgs, Kelly D. Humes, William M. King, Thomas M. Lancaster, Bruce L. Lewis, Lee R. Mullen, Melvin A. Mydland, Gayle P. Norman, James M. Page, Arthur B. Ramsey, Fred W. Robinson, Ralph E. Sturgeon, Allen L. Swaim, Emory E. Taylor, Curtis L. Tetley, Atridus C. Thrower, John R. Watts, Marshall L. Wilson and Richard Wilson.

Sikeston Represented In Fire Show At Cape

John A. Young, Sikeston fire chief, and Roy Beard and Milburn Arbaugh, city firemen, went to Cape Girardeau Thursday to participate in the first annual fire show which was presented at 7:30 o'clock at the fire department headquarters by members of the Cape Girardeau department and those of other Southeast Missouri towns.

With firemen from Charleston and Chaffee, the Sikeston men presented a salvage demonstration which was intended to illustrate various methods used to protect property from water damage. The demonstration consisted chiefly of throwing tarpaulins over furniture. Working together, Sikeston firemen protected furniture on the first floor of the demonstration building, while those from Chaffee and Charleston executed similar maneuvers on the second and third floors.

Th show was opened by an address by Edward L. Drum, mayor of Cape Girardeau, and by a talk on "Duties of Firemen" by Paul R. Brooks, fire commissioner.

Th speeches were followed by a demonstration of modern fire fighting methods which was given by the Cape Girardeau and Illmo departments and by a rescue demonstration by the Cape Girardeau, Illmo, Chaffee, and Charleston firemen to show the manner of handling persons when they are taken from burning quarters. In connection with this act, Walter Weaver of Poplar Bluff, said to be one of the fastest ladder climbers in Southeast Missouri, performed.

The rest of the program included a drill showing how firemen are taught to hook up hose quickly, life saving and life belt demonstrations by Roy Smith, drill master at Cape Girardeau, a salvage cover throwing contest in which the Sikeston firemen participated, a demonstration of rope sliding, which is used when all other means of escape are eliminated, and a cellar fire demonstration by the Jackson and Dexter departments to illustrate how a cellar blaze may be controlled from the floor above.

Firemen participating in the show, in addition to those from Sikeston, were Dick Dunn, chief, and E. Lash, J. Arnold, William Clinton, "Slick" Gentery, and V. Chron, all of Charleston; A. Varble, chief, and C. Varble, M. Allen, W. Merrill, H. Schoen, and S. Musgraves, all of Chaffee; G. A. Martin, chief, and Frank Martin and L. D. Davidson, of Illmo; R. D. Boyer, chief, and Waldow Stewart, both of Dexter; Fred Kirpatrick, chief, and Walter Weaver, both of Poplar Bluff; C. Steck, chief, and M. Poe, both of Jackson; and G. D. French, chief, Roy Smith, drill master, P. L. Niswonger, H. Rabe, Otto Fowler, R. Kammer, and L. Allen, firemen; V. Unnerstall, F. McElroy, and C. Keller, volunteers, and Paul Davidson, B. X. Walker and Virginia Swan, assistants in rescue work, all of Cape Girardeau.

Negro Woman Released for Killing Aged Husband

Charleston, July 30.—A coroner's jury today returned a verdict of justifiable homicide in the case brought up today by Coroner Paul Heckney.

Pauline Clark, 37, who yesterday shot and killed her husband, Robert Clark, 69, was released, as the case soon brought forth the fact that it was self-defense, Clark having made repeated attacks on his wife and having fired at her with a shot gun yesterday. Clark was killed with a 12 guage shot gun, No. 4 shot being used.

The charge entered the left side of his mouth and almost tore his head off. Clark had been drinking, and, according to eye witnesses, said that he would kill his wife before sundown, and that he would kill him if they didn't get out of his way.

Frank Edge, commonly known as "Pork Chops", said that he was at the house when the shooting occurred. The house where the killing occurred is owned by the General American Insurance Co., and is located about eight or ten miles east of East Prairie.

Edge stated that Robert Clark was overbalanced by whiskey all day, and that in the afternoon he go so unruly that they could not do anything with him. Suddenly he made a rush at his wife and said he was going to kill her. Edge separated them, and then went out of the house to the barn where he was watering the mules when he heard a commotion. He started back to the house and saw Clark chasing his wife out of the back door.

The couple ran around the house and in through the front door. He said that Pauline came out of the back door, but that Clark stopped and got a single barrelled shot gun from the house. When he got out of the house, Clark shot once at his wife and kept chasing her.

Edge said that Clark was fumbling with his pocket, as if to get another shell. He said that Pauline ran around to the front door and got another gun, a 12 guage pump gun and came on out of the house. Clark started chasing her again and kept repeating, "I'll kill you! I'll kill you".

Pauline told him to stop and when he didn't, she shot him.

The inquest disclosed that Clark had been a habitual drunkard for several years, and that he has repeatedly tried to kill his wife, once with a butcher knife, another time with an axe, and still another with a shot gun. At the time he was shot, he was trying to get close enough to use the gun as a club to hit his wife.

The coroner's jury was composed of J. L. Simpson, Walter Rowe, F. D. Davis, Homer Lynn, Sam Rajotte and W. H. Barnett.

Ellick Helwanger brags that his wife is a right slick detective. When he has done wrong she can tell just by looking him in the eye. But when the Depity Constable arrests a person he has to do no end of threatening and ask an awful lot of impertinent questions.

PROPOSED BID FOR LITTLE RIVER DISTRICT OPPOSED

Letters urging bondholders of the Little River Drainage District not to approve the RFC's proposal to refund $8,180,000 in defaulted bonds on the basis of 30 cents on a $1 valuation, 3 cents higher than would have been granted under an earlier plan, have been sent out recently by officials of the recently organized National Association of Investors in Drainage and Levee District Securities.

Stating that the proposal is unfair because the district is able to afford a better settlement and because it subordinates the lien of bondholders to that of mortgage holders, the letters may be instrumental in delaying a final approval of the federal government's loan, it is thought.

The district embraces 560,000 acres of land in Cape Girardeau, Stoddard, Scott, New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin countis, through which the drainage ditch passes before it finally empties into Big Lake, Ark. The bonds have been in default since October, 1929, and to provide for refinancing, officials of the RFC tentatively approved lending $2,488,000 to the district, an amount which equals $300 for $1000 in bonds.

Numerous persons believe that bondholders would be unwise not to accept these terms since the value of the dollar is much lower now than it was at the time the bonds were purchased and since the bondholders themselves would be almost certain to net nothing at all if they foreclosed.

Heads of the newly formed organization, however, do not agree, contending that the amount of the RFC loan does not represent the full capacity to pay off the district and that although the RFC is allowed to liquidate the loan during a thirty-three year period, the district commissioners requested one which would be liquidated in sixteen years.

"Early this year," they have stated in the letters, "after making a most thorough and exhaustive examination of the district, the RFC authorized a loan of $2,188,914, equivalent to approximately $273 per $1000 bond. Holders of a large block of these bonds refused to accept the proffered devaluation, and as evidence of the correctness of their position, the RFC last July 5 established a precedent by reviewing the application of this district and increasing the amount of the loan by $500,000, which will bring the total per $1000 bond to approximately $300.

"The report of the RFC indicates that approximately 240,000 acres of the district are in cultivation and the amount of the loan to the district was predicted solely on this acreage, excluding the remaining acreage in the district as being marginal or nonproductive land.

"The RFC report further shows that the annual requirements for interest and amortization on the recommended loan of $2,188,914 would be $207,224, whereas, the annual amount actually collected in the district, based on an average of the last five years, was $371,493, while the estimated ability of the improved and cultivated lands alone is given at $377,782. In other words, according to the RFC report, the cultivated land in the district is capable of producing an annual income of $164,000 a year in excess of the annual requirements of the proposed loan, which excess, together with the above stated amount, if extended over the 33-year period allowed by the law, would pay the interest and amortization of a loan of $6,000,000 at 4 per cent interest per annum.

"While a majority of the bondholders of this district have directly or tacitly approved the loan of $273 per $1000 bond, it seems safe to say many of them have done so without even an effort to ascertain the intrinsic value of their bonds or the tax-paying ability of the land on which their bonds are secured by lien superior to first mortgage deeds of trust and all other obligations excluding only general taxes. Furthermore, it seems obviously unfair to use that the holders of these bonds, which are in effect a first lien against the land, should be asked to accept a 70 per cent loss on their investment when the holders of mortgages which are a second lien are not asked to make any sacrifice whatever."

A new motion picture is named "Here Comes the Groom". It is about time that the poor guy was getting a little attention.

The ladies are more interested in what a bride is married in than what she's married to.

Whenever words of comfort seem to fall short of the situation we are reminded of the cemetery salesman who was trying to sell a lot to a little old lady. He wound up by saying, "Just think, wouldn't it be a great comfort to know that after you die you would be buried beside this beautiful lake?" "What!" exclaimed his prospect, "with my rheumatism?"

But a few more days for our political bosses to huddle with the floating vote and look important. In every community there are a few fellows who try to look sufficiently important to attract the attention of the candidate with a little money to spend. There have been times, so we are told, when a man with a jug of whiskey could lead great droves of voters to the polls, but that day has passed to never return. White and colored alike who have any self respect, have learned to think for themselves and decide on the candidate who they believe will best represent them. Anyway, if finances are to influence your vote, get all you can from every one, then vote as you please.

With an oat crop that was hardly worth harvesting, and with the corn crop blasted in all but a handful of counties in Southeast Missouri, farmers should lose no time in providing themselves with seed corn and seed oats for next year, and in each case I would make my reservations from last year's oats and corn. In my opinion we will witness the greatest scramble for seed next spring the country has ever known, and therefore the time to buy is now, and this is likewise true of corn and oats for feed next winter. In fact, I seriously doubt whether there is enough old corn in the country to last until a new crop is produced, and thus this is another matter farmers should be thinking about.—Wm. Hirth.

I advise all farmers to sow rye or winter barley for winter pasture, and to sow it early enough so that with rain it will be available during the early winter months, and where winter barley seed can be obtained I would prefer it to rye not only because I think it makes better pasture, but because it doesn't reflect itself so much in the taste of milk from dairy cows. Because of the desperate lack of hay and other forage, farmers will need winter pasture as never before, and the sooner they make their plans to this end the better. From 10 to 20 acres of winter barley sown early will go a long way in getting the average farmer's horses, cows, hogs and sheep through the winter.—Wm. Hirth.

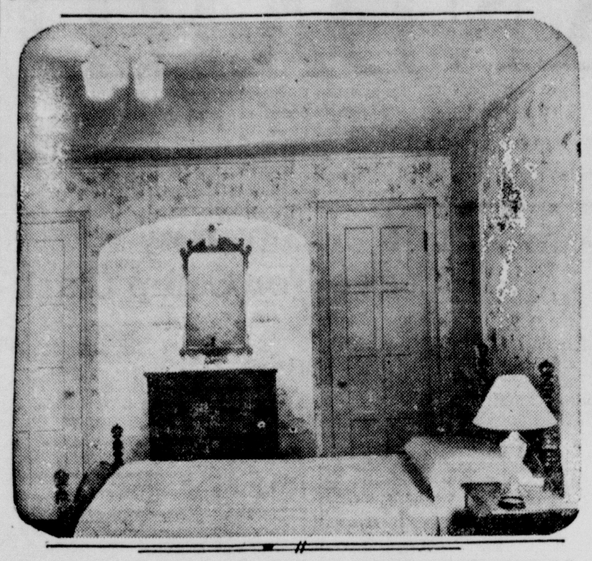
Light for the Bedroom

By Helen G. Toland



Good lighting in the bedroom is an invaluable aid in "getting the effect of a frock," finding the right accessories in the bureau drawers, and locating elusive collar buttons.

ONE by one, science is smashing Life's lovely illusions. The latest to go is the chubby little lamp with the highly colored shade that was wont to hold sway in milady's chamber. Science has pushed it off the bedside table once and for all, by declaring that the human eye requires quite as much light to read in bed, as it does to read any place else.

Purpose of "Boudoir" Lamps

The ten units of light which normal eyes need as a minimum for comfortable reading cannot be supplied by anything less than a 60-watt lamp bulb, and the so-called "boudoir lamp" usually boasted only a 25-watt. A comfortable reading posture implies a wide circle of useful light, which can be obtained only by a lamp with a reasonably tall base and broad shade. The boudoir lamp had neither. So since it provided too little light for reading, and didn't throw "that little" in the right place, it has been relegated to a decorative role in the home, and a new lamp has come to take its place on the bedside tables of the land.

Although the new lamp is really of some use, it is quite as attractive as the boudoir lamp. In general it is characterized by a tall base, but slender so that it does not appear out of scale with the small bedside table. The height of the base makes a broader shade suitable. This combination insures a wide circle of useful light on the book of the reader-in-bed, who can now enjoy a comfortable reading posture and no longer needs to be a contortionist. Neither is there any further need of squinting, for the new lamp, being larger, carries a lamp bulb of the 60-watt size, equal to the task of providing enough light for normal eyes.

For use between twin beds, the lamp with two arms, two bulbs, two shades is proving very popular, since it enables two to read comfortably as well as simultaneously. The convenient height of the junior floorlamp, its broad shade and three sockets combine to make it admirably suited to bedside service too.

Although these lamps are primarily practical, doing a real lighting job, they are in tune with the most frivolous bedrooms. The shades are tinted to carry out the color scheme of the room, quite as effectively as the highly colored shades on the old boudoir lamps. Deep color is not good for lamp shades, since it distorts the real color scheme of the room, and absorbs much of the light that our eyes really require.

Avoid High-Colored Shades

Again at the dressing table, shades of high color have been discarded, and in their place we find palely tinted or white shades. Twin lamps, tall enough to bring the lamp bulb at the face height of the person before the mirror, shaded in pale parchment, enable madame to see herself "as others see her," which any woman knows is a decided advantage.

In the bedroom the ceiling fixture comes into its own. In no other room in the house is there so much need of general illumination — to "get the effect" of a frock, to find the right accessories in bureau drawers and to aid in the location of elusive collar buttons. But even in the bedroom a bare bulb must be kept from view, so the center fixture must have shades, either small individual ones of glass or parchment, or a larger globe that shields the entire fixture from view.

JAMES SETH KEESEE

Funeral services for James Seth Keesee, 65-year-old Scott County farmer who died of a complication of diseases at his home two miles east of Morley late Thursday night, were held at the residence at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the Rev. C. R. Baker, pastor of the Morley Methodist church, officiating. Burial was in the Morley cemetery.

Mr. Keesee, who was born April 6, 1869, in Carlyle County, Kentucky, was a farmer. For fifteen years he had been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church at Perkins.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Allie Keesee, he is survived by a son, B. F. Keesee, of St. Louis; three daughters, Misses Mildred and Dorothy Keesee, both of the home, and Mrs. R. L. Dennis, of St. Louis; five brothers, Wm., Chas., Martin and Lewis Keesee, all of Illmo, and Tom Keesee, of Cape Girardeau; and two sisters, Mrs. Nancy Randolph, of Illmo, and Mrs. Martha Calbert, of Blodgett. Albritton service.

ARRESTED SATURDAY ON HARNESS THEFT CHARGE

Troopers Melvin Dace, John Tandy and Percy Little and Sheriff Joe Anderson and Scott County deputies were among a group of officers who arrested Joe Thompson at his home nine miles north of Cape Girardeau Saturday to question him concerning the theft of a set of wagon harness.

Frank Brands, of near Portageville, from whom the harness was stolen July 3, accompanied the officers and identified a set found at Thompson's home as his.

Thompson, who stated he bought the harness, valued at $40, from a stranger who said he was quitting farming, was taken to New Madrid County by Sheriff Sam Harris.

A COMFORTABLE REDUCING DIET

Who wouldn't enjoy reducing with such an array of appetizing eatables as shown above. Research workers say it can be done; that this business of taking off weight need not be a hardship.

Results of a study supervised by Dr. Leo K. Campbell of Rush Medical college, Chicago, reveal the fact that a person can reduce and still completely satisfy his appetite.

The diet used, of which the above foods are typical, is as follows:

TOP: Breakfast—1 serving of fruit; 1 egg; 1 slice of toast; 1 pat of butter; coffee (black or with very little cream and sugar)

CENTER: Luncheon—2 servings of vegetables (1 cooked and 1 raw); 1 small serving of lean meat, or 2 eggs, or 2 tablespoons cottage cheese; 1 slice of bread; 1 pat of butter; 1 glass of milk; 1 serving of fruit.

BOTTOM: Dinner—1 large serving of lean meat; 2 servings of vegetables (1 cooked and 1 raw); 1 slice of bread; 1 pat of butter; 1 glass of milk; 1 serving of fruit.

Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Orear and son, Eddie, and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Orrell are spending this week at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

Numerous articles have appeared in newspapers stating that the Bankhead Bill, tax on cotton, would likely be suspended for the crop year 1934 because of the existing drouth condition, according to B. W. Harrison who is to be in charge of the Bankhead work in New Madrid County. However, he is in receipt of a telegram from C. A. Cobb, Chief of the Cotton Section stating to "disregard newspaper statements regarding suspension of Bankhead Act. They apparently have their origin in an unauthorized statement appearing recently in an Eastern newspaper. To those who have been opposed to the cotton program all along this is choice propaganda and they are making the best of it".

Work will begin soon preparing the applications for tax exemption certificates for those who have signed 1934-35 Cotton Acreage Reduction Contracts. Everyone, regardless of whether or not they have signed a Cotton Reduction Contract, will have to file an application before any cotton can be sold free of tax. Applications will be partly prepared for those who have signed the regular reduction contracts at the County Agent's office. Local committeemen will be in charge in the various communities in completing applications and preparing applications for non-signers. Letters will be sent to all contract signers stating when, and whom, they may see to complete their application.

Millions NOW WANT THE NEW Firestone CENTURY PROGRESS TIRE

THAT TEN MILLION PEOPLE HELPED TO BUILD

EQUAL OR SUPERIOR TO ANY FIRST QUALITY TIRE BUILT ... REGARDLESS OF NAME, BRAND, BY WHOM MANUFACTURED OR AT WHAT PRICE OFFERED FOR SALE

THE immediate and enthusiastic acceptance of the new Firestone Century Progress Tire started a tremendous wave of buying that is keeping the Firestone factories running twenty-four hours a day to meet this huge demand.

We knew that car owners would replace their thin-worn, dangerous tires if they could get what they wanted in a tire at the price they wanted to pay. We found the answer through ten million visitors to the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year. We asked them—"What do you value most in a tire?"—and their answer was — "Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a moderate price."

Drive in to the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store today! Equip your car with these new Firestone Century Progress Tires, with the massive flat tread, deep-cut, non-skid, broad husky shoulders, and Gum-Dipped cords. Tire prices probably never again will be as low as they are today. At these unusually low prices for first grade tires, we make it easy for you to buy not only one tire, but a complete set.

LITTLE AMERICA ★ ANTARCTICA

With Byrd at the South Pole

by C.A. Abele Jr. U.S.N.R. President

35

A DANGEROUS TRIP!

This tractor, with new body, will carry five men on history's most amazing trip.

LITTLE AMERICA, ANTARCTICA, July 20 (via Mackay Radio) —Tomorrow night! The start of the most astonishing journey ever made by mankind! An intrepid group of five men will leave here in a little French tractor, braving the Antarctic winter night, howling blizzards, temperatures of 60 and 75 degrees below zero, drifts of snow 40 and 50 feet deep and a wilderness of bottomless crevasses covered with thin shells of snow. They will attempt to go 123 miles down to Bolling Advance Base at Latitude 80.13 South to get Admiral Byrd out of his tiny buried hut and bring him back to the civilization of Little America. And probably two of the number will remain there to make meteorological observations until the sun comes back to us on August 22. Some undertaking, eh?

The trip is bristling with deadly dangers, not the least of which is the possibility that the trail, marked out last February with little orange colored flags on bamboo sticks, has been obliterated by the howling, swirling blizzards.

And am I busy! The success of the trip and the lives of the men will depend entirely upon the efficient functioning of the little tractor, and the quality and operation of the gasoline and lubricating oil. As fuel engineer I feel a great sense of responsibility. I have had to drop my aviation work and assist Pete Demas, of Washington, D. C., and Bernard W. Skinner, of Winthrop, Me., in the preparation of the tractors for the trip. While only one tractor will start, two others will be held in readiness to go to its rescue at a moment's notice. The leader of the trip will be Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, of Mount Pleasant, Iowa, and with him will be Skinner, who is a tractor driver, Amory H. Waite, Jr., radio operator of Wollaston, Mass., and two others whose names haven't been announced as yet.

Every possible precaution is being taken. The tractor engines have been completely overhauled. The cab bodies I told you about previously have been reconstructed to make each tractor a self-contained traveling unit. Every mechanical detail has been checked and rechecked. The tractors are mechanically as perfect as human ingenuity and skill can make them. The extreme temperatures to which the machines will be subjected have introduced two problems, that of gasoline vaporization and lubrication. The gasoline tanks have been thoroughly washed and filled with the wonderful fuel Admiral Byrd selected for this greatest of automotive Polar expeditions. Each tractor has a capacity of 175 gallons of gasoline, carried in two tanks.

The radiators have been provided with covers and all openings in the engine compartments have been practically sealed in order to keep the carburetors and intake manifolds as warm as possible. The exhaust manifolds have been deflected so that they exhaust directly against the differential housing which will insure sufficient heat in the differential to provide a continuous circulation of oil. On each machine a special oil tank has been mounted in the engine compartment over the engine. A pipe runs from this tank to the crankcase. Heat from the engine keeps this oil warm at all times and when it becomes necessary to refurnish the oil in the crankcase the operator will only have to open a petcock and run in a sufficient quantity.

Here is one of the most interesting mechanical points of this trip. Two special gasoline stoves generating an extremely high heat are being taken along. When the engine stops for any reason whatever these stoves will be lighted immediately and placed underneath the engine and the differential. This trip is the first of its kind ever attempted and is both formidable and hazardous. I hope to tell you a lot more about it next week.

This is the beginning of a lot of exciting adventures in which I want all you club members to share. Get out your maps and mark this strange journey on it when I give you the details of it later. If you are not a member of the club, now is a swell time to join. It costs nothing. Simply send a clearly self-addressed, stamped envelope to me at the club's American headquarters and the staff there will send you entirely free, a beautiful big working map of Antarctica and a membership card. Address Arthur Abele, Jr., president, Little America Aviation and Exploration Club, Hotel Lexington, 48th Street and Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y.

CHARLES R. FENIMORE

Funeral services for Charles R. Fenimore, 75 years old, who died of heart trouble and hardening of the arteries at the home of his brother, G. W. Fenimore, in Bertrand early Sunday morning, were conducted at the Bertrand Methodists Episcopal church Monday afternoon by the Rev. Margraves. Burial was in the I. O. O. F. cemetery in Charleston.

Besides a brother, Mr. Fenimore is survived by another brother in Detroit, Mich., a sister in Los Angeles, Calif., and a second sister in Jackson. Dempster service.

WILLIAM A. BURNS

Funeral services for William A. Burns, who died following a heart attack at his home in Charleston Tuesday, were conducted at 9:00 o'clock Tuesday morning at St. Henry's Catholic church, the Rev. John Weiberg officiating. Burial was in Charleston.

Mr. Burns, who was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Burns, was born in Mississippi county, where he was a merchant and landowner. For approximately a year he had not been well. He was 57 years old.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Martin Burns, Clarksdale, Miss.; a brother, Ed Burns, Charleston; and two sisters, Miss Elizabeth Burns, Charleston, and Mrs. J. H. Edelen, St. Louis.

BLOOMFIELD POSTOFFICE CLERK HELD ON CHARGE OF ROBBING U. S. MAIL

A 23-year-old Bloomfield postoffice clerk, charged with stealing from the mails, was arraigned before an acting United States Commissioner in Poplar Bluff Wednesday morning and placed in the Butler County jail until he could file a bond for an appearance at the next term of the Federal court.

The youth, Ancil Lloyd Street, was arrested Tuesday morning by federal inspectors after he was said to have taken marked bills from two test letters and hidden them in his right shoe. He had been suspected for more than a year, ever since numerous letters, some containing money, had disappeared and complaints had been made to postoffice authorities.

Street admitted tampering with the mail, according to officers but stated that his total haul was less than $20 in cash.

If he is convicted, he may be sentenced to five years in a penitentiary or fined $5000, or given both.

SHOWERS BRING RELIEF

All crops benefited from moisture and from escape from excessive heat following showers which have fallen periodically over the district during the last three days. And although the immediate vicinity of Sikeston has not been greatly favored with rain, other sections, particularly in the east and south, have been immeasurably aided.

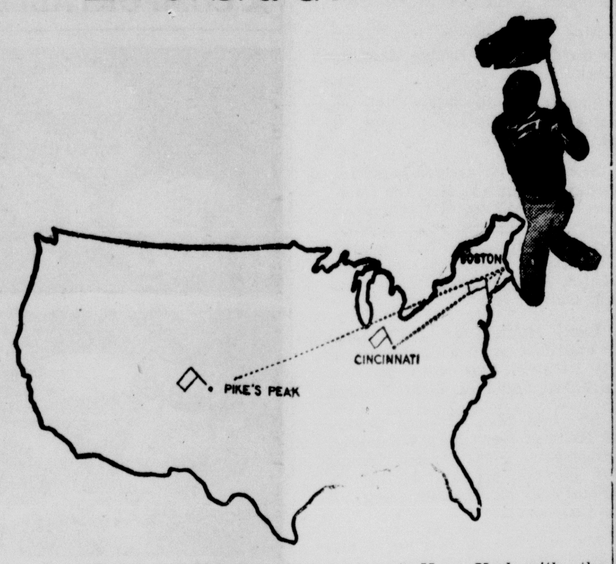
The rainfall broke the intense heat in which men, animals, and crops had been suffering and lowered thermometer readings which had risen in parts of the State to new highs. Last Friday, a new record was set in Columbia, with 111 degrees, and in St. Louis, with 110.

The whole State, however, still badly needs rain, since only scattered showers have fallen in many sections. The total rainfall for July has been the second lowest ever recorded, for it is only a little above the July, 1930, total, and the total for the last four months in only 8.62 inches, or 50 per cent of normal, according to Roscoe Nunn in his weekly weather and crop bulletin.

Probably eighty to ninety per cent of corn is without ears, and very little prospect of any ears forming, and about forty per cent is not making fodder. Much corn has been fed to stock or cut for silage.

Very little alfalfa is yielding a third cutting. Nearly all gardens, pastures and forage crops, are dried up. Potatoes are mostly poor, and some are rotting in the ground. Apples are badly damaged, sunburned, small, and many dropping. Forest trees are dying in places. Water shortage is very serious on many farms and in some villages.

All U. S. a Golf Course



From Boston a golf ball could be driven to New York with the energy of an averaged-sized car going 20 miles per hour; to Cincinnati, O., at 40 miles, and nearly to Pike's Peak in Colorado at 60 miles an hour. High speeds are potentially dangerous, and if drivers could simply realize what speeds mean, as illustrated above, and would control their rates of speed, accidents would not be as serious as they were in 1933 when 29,900 persons were killed and 850,700 were injured non-fattally.

GREATLY ALARMED

Partisan critics of the national administration's program, designed to overcome hard times, profess to be greatly alarmed about the large sum of money spent in financing emergency measures. They disregard the fact that much of the money placed in circulation as result of various relief measures is represented by loans that are amply secured and which will be repaid with interest.

An Associated Press dispatch published recently presented significant information. It summarized emergency expenditures in the last fiscal year, which totaled about four and a half billion dollars. Attention was called to the fact that half of it bore a return address.

That half which will eventually return to the treasury represents money loaned to farm and home owners, bank corporations, to aid them in meeting emergency situations. Federal credit projects in which two-thirds of the money advanced for building projects through the PWA are included in the category of disbursements that are secured by acceptable collateral.

The money distributed to farmers as farm benefits will be balanced, it is anticipated, by processing taxes levied on processors. So, when all these things are taken into consideration, the claims of those who attack the administration for partisan reasons are revealed as a dishonest distortion of facts. The treasury is not being obligated in excess of resources of the nation. Nor is the program of expenditures to relieve the distress of a citizenship, which has patiently borne the hardships of depression, based on profligate extravagance.—Clinton Co. (Ky.) Gazette.

AN APPEAL TO ALL VOTERS --- MEN and WOMEN

Being badly crippled, makes it impossible for me to call on you personally. It is a task for me to get up to and down from my office, but it does not take away from me the desire to be self-sustaining; to make my own living; to give a few nickels to children and to others in need; not to be a burden on my children, and, Blessed Be God, in my crippled condition, I have been able to raise a rather large and I think respectable family. I can attend to the duties of this office, for I hope I am not crippled in my head. I can make a living out of it, and want you help me to get it. In order to vote for either of us, H. A. Walton, W. S. Smith, Joe W. Myers or W. H. Carter, you MUST scratch one of our names. Only three of us can be nominated. I hope you can find it in your heart to leave my name on the ticket on August 7th. Won't you please do this and I will ever be grateful to you.

Respectfully submitted,

H. A. WALTON

Candidate for the Office of

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE

TO THE VOTERS

In order to properly administer the many duties imposed on the office of the county clerk and at the same time render courteous and efficient service, it requires a thorough knowledge as to the procedure of turning out the great volume of work made necessary in this office, and experience and efficiency must be seriously considered if the job is to be done as intended.

The new county budget law has just gone into effect but this law cannot be carried out in all its details without being familiar with the problems and functions of the county government and all its departments. Next year the Jones Law, which provides assessed tax valuations of farm lands in drainage districts shall be reduced by the amount of unpaid drainage tax, must be applied. This work will be rather technical and will require much time and a workable system. The county clerk's force, being familiar with all records concerned, can more readily see that the proper reductions are made. These increased duties, together with the already heavy duties, make it all the more important that EXPERIENCE AND EFFICIENCY be considered first.

CHAPTER VII

HOME FROM THE WAR

Don Felipe del Castillo handed a telegram to Madero. It read:

"Francisco Madero liberator of Mexico. Dear friend excuse me for the way I fight. I took Juraez today. Nobody killed much. Pancho Villa."

"Any word from Mexico City?" asked Madero.

General Pascal replied: "The abdication of Diaz is a matter of days, perhaps hours. There is not a Diaz regiment left."

"Deserted him. Fled when his star was setting," said Madero.

"It was an evil star."

"Yet they served it once. It is sad to be deserted."

"Victory is ours, Madero," said Pascal.

"I'm not thinking of victory but of Mexico."

Villa and his army were in a cafe in Juarez, celebrating their victory, drinking, laughing, making love. Pancho was in a booth, watching a girl doing a sensuous dance. Chavito was asleep in a fat woman's lap; Fierro was preening himself with the Politico's mirror in his hands. Johnny Sykes was perched on top of the booth singing to himself, in a fit of homesickness, "In the Good Old Summer Time."

Villa, scowling at Fierro, grabbed the girl when she had finished her dance, flung her on his lap and fell to kissing her shoulders. That was how Rosita, escorted into the cafe by two soldiers carrying a suitcase, found him.

"So this is the way you fight battles! This is what you do, eh? Carnago, Ojinga, Jiminez, Santa Rosalle! Hanging around the saloons!" She addressed the dancer: "Get out!"

"Who you talking to?" asked the girl with an insolent stare.

"Who do you think you are?"

"I'm his wife."

"It's a lie," protested Villa, blinking.

The girl shook him. "You just married me." She pointed to Johnny. "He married us."

"Come down here!" Rosita screamed at Johnny. "You done this, eh?"

"Hold your horses," said Johnny, dropping down from his perch. "I never saw the little lady before in my life."

"So this is the way you fight battles!" cried Rosita.

Rosita gave a triumphant shout. "You hear that! Get out!" She smacked the dancer's jaw, knocking her off Pancho's lap. Johnny started to bolt, but Pancho grabbed his leg.

"Hey, don't go away!"

"Court's adjourned," said Johnny, and bolted. Rosita pulled Pancho to his feet and started him across the crowded floor of the cafe, screaming in his ear.

"I capture Juarez today. We celebrate."

"All right, you capture! After this when you capture something, you celebrate with me, you pig-face!" She saw him exchange a sly, amorous glance with the dancer, now sitting on Fierro's lap, and banged her suitcase into Pancho's ear just as shouts of "Viva Villa!" burst out, and a soldier approached and announced:

"Colonel Villa, Francisco Madero has just arrived on the train."

Pancho turned on Rosita, placed his broad hand on her face and gave a shove which pushed her over backwards. "Go home! Fierro! Come quick! Madero is here!"

All the way to the station, Pancho and his friends had to fight their way through the crowds. Through a window of the station restaurant Pancho saw Don Felipe's sister, Teresa, at a table with some friends. He gave a yell, put his foot through the window, breaking the glass, and jumped through, followed by several of his Doradoes. He shouted gaily across the restaurant: "Hey! How do you do!"

"It's Pancho Villa!" Teresa said excitedly to her friends, jumped up and ran to meet him. "Oh, I'm so glad to see you! You haven't changed, despite all the great things you've done for Mexico. I always tell everybody how we met at the hacienda. Remember?"

Pancho beamed down upon her. "Sure! The rich and the poor are the same. Tonight everybody the same!"

"But I musn't keep you from Madero," she responded, quickly. "He's in the telegraph office. I wish you could get him to eat something."

Pancho called his aides, kicked in the glass front of the restaurant counter, and began emptying it of sandwiches, cake, pickle jars and everything else it contained. He piled them up on a tray and gave it to a girl to carry, while he continued to stuff his pockets with food, and called to Fierro to get some coffee for Mr. Madero. With a shout to Teresa not to go away, he left in search of Madero. He kicked open the door of the telegraph room. Madero, Don Felipe and General Pascal were standing behind the chair of the operator waiting for such news from Mexico City and the expected fall of Diaz as the key might click forth.

"Hello!" called Pancho, gently, his arms filled with sandwiches and cakes. "I got some sandwiches for you. How do you do?"

Pancho smiled Madero, with a happy smile. "I want to thank you for Juarez and Santa Rosalle."

"That's all right. Here's some cake."

"We are waiting for news from Diaz. Only then did Pancho greet Don Felipe and General Pascal. As Madero sipped at the coffee which Fierro had poured for him, Pancho said softly in his ear seeking approbation:

"You hear I didn't shoot no prisoners at Juarez."

General Pascal overheard the low remark. "No, because you killed all who tried to surrender'" he said with an unpleasant laugh.

Pancho scowled at Pascal. "Oho. The General is a little mad because I took Juarez while he's sitting somewhere."

A clatter from the telegraph instruments cut off the angry retort forming on Pascal's lips. They waited in suspense while the operator took down the message and handed it to Madero who read it through, remained silent a moment and then said, gently: "Diaz has fallen. He abdicates. We are the rulers of Mexico."

Pancho beamed at Madero, went to the window and thrust his foot through, yelling to the crowd outside: "Viva Madero' President of Mexico'"

A Gringo shouldered his way through the rejoicing, unruly throng, shouting: "Hey! Pancho!"

"Johnny!" Pancho's big hand reached through the broken window and pulled Johnny Sykes into the telegraph room. "Madero's out there. You want to talk to him?"

"I ain't got time!" yelled Johnny above the tumult. "I got to get a wire open to New York. Step on it, operator. Get me the New York World."

"It's all right, do what Johnny says," Villa told the operator, and went in search of Madero.

Face to face again with his chief, in the restaurant from which the excited throng had been expelled at the cost of a completely wrecked room, Pancho heard Pascal saying:

"I agree with Your Excellency. Delay is useless. It's better to start for Mexico City at once."

Pancho, dazed with success, went over to Madero and took his arm affectionately. "I got my army. Take about an hour. I get 5,000 on that train."

"There is no need for an army," said General Pascal. "We are agreed that His Excellency must arrive in the capital not as a conquerer but as a friend. I'll go and give the order to start."

"Pancho," said Madero, "the battles are over. Your work is done. You must go back to peace. You must send your army to their homes."

Pancho stared unbelievingly at his friend, unaware of the arrival of Johnny Sykes in the room. "You mean you don't want me to come to Mexico City?"

"You can serve Mexico best by disbanding your army and returning to your home."

"You would be looked upon as a friend of bandits," said General Pascal. "The better elements would desert our cause."

"Aw, listen," pleaded Pancho. "You can't go without Pancho. He's your friend. He loves you. You gonna need somebody you can trust."

"I'll send for you if that time comes," said Madero. "Pancho, I know you better than to offer you rewards. Liberty is your reward. Liberty that your courage has won for your brothers. They will remember Pancho Villa and sing of him as long as there are minstrels left."

Pascal returned and announced that the train was ready to start.

Madero took Pancho by the arm. "You are better away from Mexico City, Pancho. These are my orders. Captain Lopez, I want these messages to go."

When Madero had left the room, Pancho backed General Pascal against the wall. "You go with him, eh? No army. Just you to protect him. All right, but remember this—if anything happens to the little fella that's your fault you'll see me again. Remember that."

Madero returned and, removing a ring, slipped it on the finger of Pancho. "Wear this for good luck and eternal friendship. Good-bye, Pancho. My heart thanks you for Camargo, Ojinaga, Juarez and for Mexico." He kissed the bandit leader on both checks. Pancho remained staring unseeingly at the ring until he heard Johnny Sykes saying: "Well, Pancho, you're the best copy I ever had. In behalf of my six million readers and my city editor, I thank you. Hey stop crying, will you?"

"I thought maybe I get loose from Rosita and me and you have some fun tonight," Villa muttered.

"Ah...Ah...You gotta go home. It's nine o'clock. So long, partner."

Simon Loebe of the Charleston Enterprise-Courier has got the goods on the Missourian Prtg. & Sta. Co., of Cape Girardeau, which is owned by the Naeter Bros., publishers of the Religious daily of that city. The Missourian has been cutting prices for printing below the Price Determination Schedule of the National Graphic Arts Code, and their representative was in Charleston last week soliciting business at prices not in line with the code and Loebe has proof of it, therefore has reported it to the U. S. District Attorney for action, which we for one, hope will be forthcoming. Good work Simon, we hope you make it stick and lay it on 'em good and strong, if you can. Their representative was here also last week, and we presume pursued the same tactics here, as we know it has heretofore been the Missourian's policy to print stuff much cheaper out in the territory than they do right in Cape Girardeau, despite the fact that the Naeter boys—Fred and George—once stated while in our office "that they never solicited any printing in a town where a printing office was located in this territory." There's hardly a printing shop in Southeast Missouri which has not felt the sting of unfair competition which the Missourian shop at Cape puts up, and why they should go out into the territory nad offer work at a price cheaper than they will turn it our for customers in Cape Girardeau we cannot see, unless it is because they hope to damage the printing shops located over the district. In the past other shops have been powerless to keep them from this unfair competition but with the Graphic Arts Code now in effect, a very suitable weapon for keeping them in line is at hand, and we hope they're turned up every time they're caught violating this law. —Malden Merit.

READ AND REFLECT

By Art L. Wallhausen

Since 1923 we've sort of missed what is commonly known as "home cookin' ".

Which is another way of saying that since that year eating has been a succession of public eating places.

And thereby hangs this part of the tale.

One begins to notice this, that and the other.

What is most noticeable is the apparent lack of realization on the part of many restaurant owners that their customers have a peculiar way of noticing things which after so long a time become commonplace to the owner and the hired help. Dust here and there; methods of handling foodstuffs; hands; silver; cracked dishes; and the kitchen itself.

Just as a matter of pleasant debate I wonder ofttimes how many restaurant girls and restaurant cooks and kitchen helpers could show a clean bill of health?

Or how many ever submitted to a physical examination, let alone one every six months.

Th same might be said of barber shops. Women have insisted and by insisting have gained their point, that operators who work on then be required by law to show proof of good health—or at least the absence of any one of a number of social diseases.

Men folks just take things for granted.

Here and there one will find an up-to-date shop, one where instruments are sterilized after each use; where powder brushes are not dropped on the floor and then swabbed around over the next victims's face. And where the same hot water towel is not used on a half dozen assorted faces.

But not often.—Poplar Bluff Republican.

William Storms, 43, a farmer near Ramsey, N. J., had been turned down twice by Miss Jennie Quackenbush when he proposed. So-o-o-o-o, he drew $2400 from the bank, pooled it with $1,200 which he had in a wallet, went to his farm, shot three horses, set fire to the barn, tossed the money and a deed to the farm into the flames. His clothing caught fire and he dived into a creek. Neighbors hauled him out. He is dead.

PRESIDING JUDGE

The Democratic voters next Tuesday should re-nominate John W. Heeb of near Chaffee, for Presiding Judge of the County Court. Since 1928, Judge Heeb has been instrumental in reducing the real estate valuations in Scott County for tax purposes, approximately 45%. He is a real dirt farmer and is sympathetic with the troubles farmers have been having.

The Budget Law is now being put in effect. New tax laws are taking effect next year when lands in drainage districts are to be assessed on a new basis and it is no time to change the Presiding Judge with these new laws coming in. Judge Heeb understands them and can best administer them. He has always been SAFE and DEPENDABLE. The County needs his services.

CROPS BADLY DAMAGED BY HAIL NEAR LAFORGE

A svere hail storm which began at about 6 o'clock Monday evening and fell over an area of about a square mile near LaForge in New Madrid County, badly damaged approximately a 1000 acres of cotton on farms managed by Thomas B. Allen. The loss was completely covered by hail insurance.

TO ATTEND SEMO LIFE INSURANCE MEETING AT BLUFF SATURDAY NIGHT

C. L. Malone, Hirschel Randolph, C. C. Scott, Steve Humphreys and Fred Allard expect to go to Poplar Bluff Saturday to attend a dinner meeting of the Southeast Missouri Life Underwriters' Association which will be held at the Ducker Hotel, beginning at 6:30 o'clock. Mr. Malone is president of the organization.

At the last monthly meeting held July 7, thirty-one insurance agents from Charleston, Dexter, Poplar Bluff, Caruthersville, and Cape Girardeau were present.

LIGHTNING BRIEFLY VISITS DR. T. C. McCLURE'S HOME

Although the maid, who was standing at the kitchen sink, was badly frightened, no damage resulted when a bolt of lightning struck wires at the home of Dr. T. C. McClure at 702 Park, early Monday evening, went down into the house, through the electric stove, and into the ground.

Firemen, hurrying to Dr. McCure's home, found no blaze. They turned off the light switch, inspected the wires, and turned it on again.

The stove was in a normal condition. The maid recovered her equanimity later.

DILLINGER'S NAME IS BASIS OF SUIT

Alleging his son jumped from a motor car and was fatally injured when the driver introduced himself as "John Dillinger," John Byrd filed suit last Tuesday asking damages of $10,000 from Boyd Pruiett and the Van Ausdell Motor Company, Hayti, which employs Pruiett as a salesman.

After picking up young Byrd near there several weeks ago, the petition alleges, Pruiett said ne was "John Dillinger." The youth leaped from the car, suffering a fractured skull from which he died.

Arrow fits shirts to more than your figure

There are all kinds of male figures in the world . . . and Arrow makes shirts to fit most of them. There are also all kinds of pocketbooks—and Arrow Shirt prices fit most of them!

Want to spend around $2 for a shirt—and get lots for your money? Then let us show you TRUMP at $1.95, GORDON white at $2 . . . both shrewd shirt buys. For $2.50 we offer you the PADDOCK and at $3.50 the CLARIDGE. Both are true triumphs in the shirt-makers' art! And if you feel mildly extravagant there's that superb shirt—the BARONET—at $5.

But whatever price you pay for an Arrow Shirt, you'll get worlds of Arrow style and tailoring. And every Arrow Shirt is Sanforized-Shrunk. You get a new shirt if one ever shrinks. We're anxious to show you the whole family.

FELKER
For COLLECTOR

FELKER will give this important office his personal attention six days a week.

FELKER will see that Government Bonds are placed up for security behind every dollar of our school and county monies.

FELKER knows you 365 days a year, any place, any time, anywhere.

FELKER tries hard to be present with you at all entertainments in your community and it is always a real pleasure to be there among you.

FELKER has helped to stop speculation and if every voter in the county knew how he had represented the people instead of the selfish few, no five candidates would defeat him this year.

WHO FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR?

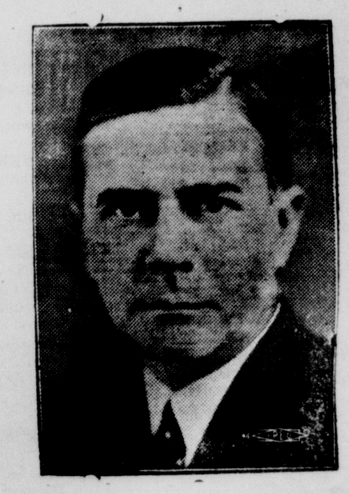
A number of my friends have asked me for my opinion about who we should vote for on August 7th, for nomination to the office of United States Senator. So far as I am personally cncerned, and in my judgment, so far as any ordinary voter is concerned, it makes very little difference as to who is nominated for United States Senator, for all three of the candidates are good, honest, intelligent citizens. It is only those who hope for some political preferment for themselves or their frineds, who should be interested in and be tearing their shirts for either of the candidates.

We have three Political Organizations in the State battling for National and State Patronage; one, Judge Truman, who has Boss Pendergast's and the State Administration behind him; another, Mr. Cochran, who has the St. Louis branch and "Sour Grapes" Charley behind him; and, yet another, J. L. (Tuck) Milligan, with Senator Clark and Ex-Senator Harry B. Hawes behind him, and who will be supposed to stand with them in the further distribution of Federal Patronage in Missouri. Take your choice. I don't like the idea of being bossed from St. Louis or Kansas City, for with these cities casting only 37½% of the Democratic vote and and Rural District casting 62½%, it looks too much like the tail wagging the dog. I think it was a mistake for Senator Clark to go out campaigning for "Tuck", so what am I to do? I look about and I see the State grudgingly gave us Steve Hunter, Tom Scott and Tom Dudley as sop to Russell Dearmont, which of course was very fine; fine, really fine, because of the quality, and fine because so very few. If Judge Truman wins we can kiss any further patronage for this section, goodbye. If Mr. Cochran wins, we can expect nothing further from this section. Mr. Clark gave us Harry Blanton, a new type of American manhood, the greatest honor ever coming to a Democrat from this section of the State; besides, numerous, splendid and deserving Postmasters. Think Senator Clark made a mistake in getting actively into the campaign, but "Tuck" Milligan is the one chance we have in getting a Senator from Rural Missouri, which we have not had since the Hon. W. Joel Stone. In my judgment it is our opportunity to show the State at large that we appreciate what Senator Clark did for us in real recognition of Southeast Missouri, the Gibraltar of Missouri, Democracy. I aim to vote for J. L. "Tuck" Milligan, and would like to see those of my friends, who are not "sot" in their ideas do the same.

Respectfully submitted,

M. G. GRESHAM

Vote For
J. L. (Tuck) Milligan
For Senator



J. L. (Tuck) Milligan is the only Country Candidate for United States Senator. He is forty-five years old and has been a member of Congress from Ray County for thirteen years. He is the only candidate for Senator who is not backed by a city political machine. He has constantly supported the policies of President Roosevelt and he has voted for, and fought for, farm relief. His experience qualifies him for the place. He has a high standing in the Congress of the United States. He favors relief for disabled veterans. He was a Captain in the World War. He was Democratic Whip of the House under Speaker Garner. Help elect a rural Democrat to the United States Senate.

SIKESTON GOLFERS WON EIGHTH GAME, LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP SUNDAY

By winning the eighth and final match of the Southeast Missouri league at Poplar Bluff Sunday the undefeated Sikeston club golfers captured the league championship for the second consecutive year. Sunday's game score was 49 to 24.

Unlike last year, when Sikeston had to play off a tie with Poplar Bluff for the championship, the local golfers had no close competition in the league during the whole season.

With twenty-seven golfers, Sikeston outplayed Poplar Bluff men on their own grounds, eleven of them shooting a score of 80 or less.

John Phillips of Poplar Bluff had the low game score of 71, but Orville Lumsden and Bill Malone were on his heels with 72's. Geo. Kirk and Hester Alexander were just one stroke behind with 73's, and Sonny Lee and Pete Medley followed with 74's, making a total of six Sikeston golfers who shot the Poplar Bluff course under 75.

On Sunday Sikeston will meet members of the Cape Girardeau golf club, many of whom are excellent players, on the grounds here.

KAYACKS LAUNCHED ON DRAINAGE DITCH

The three Eskimo Kayacks made by members of the Sikeston Sea Scout group were launched Sunday morning on the St. John's drainage ditch near McMullin and paddled five miles to the Reiss dairy farm, where the water tourists landed and returned home for the noon meal. The three builders of the boats, John F. Wood, Jr., Charles Yanson and Franklin Struwe, made the trip in two hours and thirty-five minutes.

During the afternoon the three and their companions set out again, going to the Wolf Hole bridge and paddling nine miles to Matthews in three hours and forty-five minutes. The boats easily held 540 pounds of weight, standing six inches from the water even when they were heavily loaded.

Members of the party, besides the three Sea Scouts, were V. L. Bowles, skipper of the group, Louise Wood and Dorothy Eldridge.

Soon, according to Mr. Wood, the boats will be placed in the Natatorium here for exhibition.

ILLMO YOUTH DROWNED WHILE SWIMMING SUNDAY

Orville Eifert, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eifert, of near Illmo, was drowned as he swam in a diversion channel five miles south of Cape Girardeau, Sunday afternoon.

Friends of the youth, who was a good swimmer, thought he was seized with cramps.

Even though several companions dived for his body, which sank in water sixteen feet deep, it was not recovered until two hours after Eifert drowned.

As he swam with friends, Jess Bailey, Omer and Granstead Hagen, and Joe and Paul Springer, all of Illmo, the youth went under. The companions did not think he was in need, however, until they heard him call for help before he sank again.

After the body was recovered by a fisherman at 5 o'clock in the afternon, it was taken to Illmo. Funeral services were held in St. Louis Wednesday.

Besides his parents, young Eifert, who was a student at the Illmo high school, is survived by three brothers, Richard and Eugene Eifert, both of Illmo, and Julius Eifert, St. Louis; and three sisters, Miss Verneal Eifert, Illmo, and Mrs. Linda Diebold and Miss Martha Eifert, both of St. Louis.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS

On next Tuesday, you will nominate the Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator. Who will it be? Three men are asking for the Democratic nomination—Judge Truman of Kansas City, John J. Cochran of St. Louis and J. L. "Tuck" Milligan of Ray County. Two from the large cities and one from the country. St. Louis now has a hold-over U. S. Senator, a Democrat. There are four places to be filled on the Democratic Ticket in Missouri this year: A U. S. Senator, two Supreme Judges, and a State Superintendent of Schools and two men have announced for the Supreme Judgeships—John J. Fitzsimmons of St. Louis and Chas. A. Leedy, Jr., of Kansas City, hence both will be on the Ticket. As to the Superintendent of Schools, the Kansas City Machine is supporting L. W. King. If Mr. King is successful, three places on the Democratic Ticket will be named by the St. Louis and Kansas City Democratic Machines, and if they are successful in nominating either Judge Truman or John J. Cochran, they will have selected all four places on the Ticket. St. Louis and Kansas City cast 37½ pr cent of the Democratic votes at the last General Election. The County Democrats cast 62½ per cent of the Democratic votes at the last General Election. This being a fact, are not the Country Democrats entitled to at least one place on the Ticket? Not since the days of the illustrious Senator Stone, have the Country Democrats had a U. S. Senator. J. L. "Tuck" Milligan is from Richmond, Ray County, therefore is a Country Democrat and he is the only chance the Country Democrats have in getting representation on the State Ticket. Justice and fairness and for the good of the Democratic Party, calls for and demands that Milligan be the nominee.

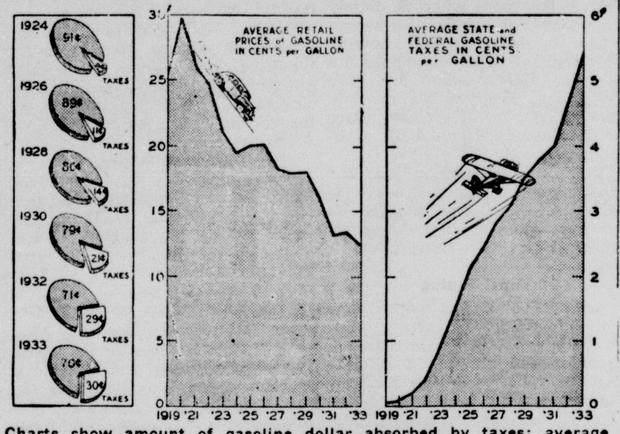
Tax Increases Fuel Cost Four Times As Much As Code Prices, Federal Trade Report Reveals



Charts show amount of gasoline dollar absorbed by taxes; average yearly retail prices of gasoline in 50 cities; and average yearly state and federal gasoline taxes.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — State and federal taxes have increased the cost of gasoline to the consumer more than four times as much as have price advances under the NRA, the Federal Trade Commission has informed the United States Senate.

Replying to a Senate inquiry as to what increased gasoline prices mean to consumers in the way of additional costs, the Commission reported that while prices advanced 2c per gallon under the Oil Code between July 1, 1933 and January 31, 1934, subsequent price declines made the average net increase only about 1c per gallon.

The increase in cost to consumers was placed at $160,000,000 annually as compared with state and federal taxes averaging 5.14c per gallon and costing $700,000,000 annually.

The Commission explained that the Consumers' Advisory Board had estimated the increased cost to consumers due to price advances at $644,000,000.

The report disclosed that while the average estimated increase in cost to consumers in all states was only 1.04c per gallon between July 1, 1933 and January 31, 1934, the average state and federal tax paid by the consumer increased from zero at the beginning of 1919 to more than 5c per gallon on February 1, 1934.

Quoting gasoline prices through the years, the Commission presented data from 50 representative cities indicating that while the average cost of gasoline to the consumer declined 27 per cent between July 1, 1926 and July 1, 1933, taxes increased about 134 per cent.

PLAN FOR CONSTRUCTION OF REST ROOMS FORMED

A move, instigated last week, for contstruction of public restrooms for men and women has met with the hearty approval of Sikeston civic leaders.

Together they are discussing possible schemes, and on Monday evening C. L. Blanton, Sr., will speak in behalf of the proposal at the regular monthly meeting of the City Council. Meanwhile, a plan which is considered very feasible, has been formed.

Since the ceiling of the boiler room, in the rear of the City Hall, is high, a space directly above it on the first floor of the building could easily be converted into a women's rest room, according to John A. Young.

Allowing a sufficient ceiling height for the boiler room, he thinks, workmen could construct a restroom which would be situated about three feet above the level of the City Hall's first floor. Several stairs would lead into the room, which would be flanked by toilets and lavatories.

In the main part of the room, however, would be placed inexpensive divans and chairs, in which women could relax, and along the walls would be hung mirrors. The room would be supervised by a negro maid.

To provide space for a men's rest room, Mr. Young said, the present small private men's and women's bath rooms in the west rear part of the first floor of the City Hall and the short narrow hallway which divides them and leads out into a vacant lot adjoining the building would all be combined into one room with entrances from the outside as well as from the interior of the City Hall.

At the time the filtration plant was built at the waterworks a year and a half ago, according to Mr. Young, members of the City Council and other city officials considered the construction of public rest rooms, which have long been considered increasingly necessary.

With J. A. Sutterfield, Mr. Young formed a plan and estimate of the cost of building rest rooms, but when it was learned that the filtration plant was to cost $5000, further expenses at the time were thought prohibitive. They were made even more so by the fact that the plant was finally built at a total cost of $18,000.

Labor for the construction of the rest rooms now could, it is believed, be furnished from the ranks of men who will be on a federal government relief roll, similar to the CWA, which is planned for this winter. Materials for the project, however, would have to be furnished by the city.

The problem of securing money for the purchase of necessary materials is not so easily solved perhaps. Only this week Attroney General Roy McKittrick ruled that a third class city may, by a city ordinance, transfer surplus earnings of a municipal water system to other municipal uses providing the transfer does not endanger the ability of the city to meet interest and principal payments on any bonds outstanding against the plant.

The Sikeston water plant ordinarily little more than breaks even on its revenue since whenever an adequate surplus is accumulated outstanding bonds are brought in. This year two have been purchased, one in January and another in June. The water plant's surplus, however, would probably be suffiicient to pay for materials for the construction of the rest rooms, it is thought.

Since the water plant surplus earnings may be diverted, many believe that those from municipal light plants might be transferred as well. The board of public works members have been using the light plant surplus to bring in

Bran Breads Are Favorites

By BARBARA BROOKS

WHEN there are so many different kinds of bread that are easily and economically prepared right at home, it really seems a shame not to treat ourselves and our families to a little variety in the "staff of life."

The various bran breads will meet a hearty reception in practically every home. Furthermore, in serving them the housewife has the satisfaction of knowing that she is following the dictates of good health as well as appealing to the palate. Bran is one of the most valuable of the "bulk" foods, and sufficient "bulk" in our diets is something we require if we are to keep our systems in good running order.

Bran Fig Honey Bread

1 egg
¼ cup brown sugar
⅓ cup honey
1 tablespoon melted shortening
1 cup bran
2½ cups flour
¾ teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped pecans
1 cup chopped figs
1½ cups milk

Beat egg, add sugar, honey and melted shortening. Mix well. Add bran. Sift flour with soda, baking powder and salt. Add pecans and figs to flour mixture. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk. Bake in greased loaf tin in a moderate oven (375° F.) for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Provides 1 large loaf.

Bran Prune Bread

1 cup bran
1 cup sour milk
½ cup prunes (soaked several hours, stoned, drained and chopped)
1 tablespoon molasses
½ cup sugar
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix together the bran, sour milk, prunes and molasses. Add the sugar, then the flour which has been sifted with the soda, baking powder and salt. Put the batter into a greased can. Cover tightly and steam for 3 hours.

Yield: 1 loaf. 8 servings.

bonds when they are able to purchase them. By now they have secure $37,000 worth from bondholders and are holding $2500 worth from the city, including all the bonds due in 1935, all except two due in 1936, and all except three due in 1937. The last of the bonds, which totaled $150,000, are not due until 1950.

Further, according to members of the board, the city has been furnished with free lighting and pumping for two years, a service which would have returned a considerable amount of revenue, and customers were not long ago given a month's free lighting. If it were necessary, however, funds from the light plant's revenue could probably be used to make possible the realization of two public rest rooms.

BAPTIST LADIES URGE OCTAGON SOAP PURCHASE

For the past several months the W. M. U. of the local Baptist church has been sponsoring a drive on the sale of Octagon soap, inasmuch as the company which makes this brand of laundry soap has entered into a contract with the Baptist churches to give them a certain per cent on every bar sold, which money goes into the funds to help save the Old Folks Home at Ironton. Co-operation along this line from local housewives has not been the best, and again the members of the W. M. U. urge that especially the Baptist ladies do their part toward the salvation of this great institution by buying this special brand of soap.

There are times when we wish some peckerwood with fifty thousand dollars would come along and take The Standard off our hands and run the paper to suit everybody. If you print some things and make them as mild as possible you still offend some, and if you would print the story as it happened and quote your informant, then there would be hell to pay.

We would dislike very much to print anything in these columns that would be unseemly, but if Divine Providence, or something else, could remove Huey Long to some remote place forever, a good deed would be done, as he has been a pain in the neck to the public since he emerged from the swamps and came into the lime light.

Some queer things happen these days. Around the Malone Park are eight householders or residents who are not hooked up with the Municipal Light Plant and still a call is made for more light for adjoining streets and Park. Each of these citizens owe it to the city to hook up with the home plant who is lighting the streets for nothing.

We were very glad to hear Mr. Truman in his speech Wednesday evening, say that if either of his opponents were the Senatorial nominee that he would take the stump and do what he could to elect them. This is the right spirit.

Any man, woman or child, white, black or indifferent, who becomes offended at news articles printed in The Standard, have a right to correct same over their own signature at any time. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Comer and children, Miss Mary Louise Arnett and Mrs. Maudie Wicks spent the week-end in St. Louis visiting Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Duncan.

On last Sunday, we closed our dedication and cornerstone laying of our church in Sunset Addition. We had a glorious session which lasted from Thursday night until Sunday at 5:30 o'clock. Refreshments were served by Sisters Roach, McGee, Porter, Seals, Bynum and Johnson.

This was one of the greatest events which ever occurred in our city. The pastor, the Rev. S. D. Woods, spared no pains making things pleasant for all.

Sunday morning at 11:30, the Rev. W. T. Macklin preached the sermon for the cornerstone laying; at 3 p. m., a wonderful paper was read by Miss Willie May Johnson at 3:30, the pastor of the white Baptsit church preached a sermon that stirred the hearts of everyone who heard him. He is a wonderful preacher. After having been introduced by Dr. Woods, the pastor, cheers went up for him by the whole house. After the sermon, Prof. N. C. Burns was presented. He made a wonderful talk, giving out information concerning the sacrificial work the pastor and members have done to make this great church a success. The cornerstone was laid by three Masons from Cape Girardeau, Morley and Sikeston, the Rev. Arthur officiating. Eastern Star members from the above named places also participated.

This church, St. John M. B. C., was built by its members and pastor without any soliciting aid and less than $275 is needed to clear us from debt. Now we ask the public please to help raise this amount.

We have two women who are authorized to beg financial aid to finish paying what we owe a lumber company. We hope they will be successful since we have gone as far as we can to pay the balance.

We thank the following named persons for what they have given, also those who have promised to give when called upon by our solicitors:

C. L. Blanton, $5; Elmos Taylor, $1; H. J. Welsh, $1.25; Hubert Boyer, $3; C. C. White, $2; T. F. Henry, $5.

JOHN YOUNG APPOINTED COUNTY COURT JUDGE TO FILL McMULLIN'S TERM

Governor Guy B. Park announced Thursday the appointment of John A. Young as judge of the first district to the Scott County Court to fill the unexpired term of Leonard McMullin, who resigned Wednesday.

Mr. Young, who is now a candidate for the Democratic nomination for judge of the County Court from the first district, subject to the primary election Tuesday, will probably be sworn into office before September 1.

Judge McMullin's resignation becomes effective August 10, but since affairs of the court in which he is particularly interested will not be terminated until sometime this month, he will continue to execute his duties during at least the first part of the August term.

Because additional business at the E. P. Coleman & Company gin required all of his attention, Judge McMullin, superintendent of the plant, altered his decision to resign as county court judge this fall and telegramed a resignation to Jefferson City, Wednesday.

Soon after his move, members of the Scott County Democratic Central Committee, which is headed by Ray B. Lucas of Benton, wired Governor Park recommending Mr. Young to succeed the resigned judge, and in a telephone conversation Wednesday night with Tom Scott, formerly deputy warden at the State penitentiary and a close friend of Missouri's chief executive, the Governor stated that Mr. Young would be appointed, adding that official confirmation of his act would arrive here the following morning

.Lr..Fas etaoin shrdlu

At 10:57 o'clock Thursday morning, a telegram signed by the governor and stating, "John A. Young appointed Judge first district Scott County, Missouri, to succeed Leonard McMullin, resigned", was received at The Standard office.

Mr. Young has long been identified with civic enterprises here. Most recently, as a member of the county committee which directed relief activities in Scott County, and as the city chairman of the CWA and all other relief setups, he has untiringly given his servcies free for the aid of indigent families.

He was president of the Chamber of Commerce at the time the International Shoe Factory was brought here, and during the seven years he served as a City councilman, the Sikeston streets were paved and the City Hall and waterworks plant were built.

Mr. Young has worked diligently and cheerfully on all committees directing activities and civic entertainments which brought glory and praise to Sikeston, and his ideas and energy have been instrumental in the growth and betterment of the city.

A resident of Sikeston for thirty years, Mr. Young was a long time president of the Sikeston Concrete, Tile & Construction Co., and in that position constructed 500 houses in the town.

Because of these achievements and because of his recognized ability, his appointment to fill the unexpired term of Judge McMullin has been enthusiastically endorsed by people throughout the county.

MELON YIELD SMALLER, PRICE HIGHER THAN IN '33

The shipping of watermelons over the Missouri Pacific railroad here continues at a level which was established last week when Scott County farmers first brought their melons to town and began to load them.

By Wednesday morning a total of fifty-four cars had been sent over the railway to St. Louis, more than twice as many were routed from here at the same time last week

Growers who are bringing their produce here, state that their yield this year is less than half of the 1933 crop. One, for example, obtained only twelve carsload from a fifty-acre tract this summer, while last year he was able to harvest thirty cars. The price is so much higher than it was in 1933, however, that growers are able to make approximately the same amount of money on their reduced yield this year as they did last.

Loaders have included H. K. Ayloob, J. L. DeWitt, J. F. Cox, Leonard McMullin, W. G. Hastings, J. R. Frye, J. B. Bailey and Ed Smoot

In Mississippi County, the number of carloads shipped will miss last year's mark of 930 cars by about 300 or 400. The average price for the more than 300 cars already sent has been $160 a car. The top was $200.

NEW YORK DEALER CONVICTED OF CUTTING AUTO CODE PRICE

New York, August 1.– Gordon S. Harris, an automobile dealer was convicted in General Sessions Court today on a charge of violating the motor vehicle retail code. It was the first code conviction under the New York State law.

Harris, who lives in Ridgewood, N. J., and maintains offices in New York, was remanded to the Tombs prison for sentencing next Tuesday. He was ordered held to enable District Attorney Williams C. Dodge to investigate evidence of forgery adduced during the trial. The penalty for violation of the motor retail code is a $500 fine.

Harris was charged with having sold to Howard A. Boyd, code investigator, a new automobile for $50 under the list price. There were two counts in the complaint, one that Harris had offered to sell, the other that he actually had made the sale.

The defendant's case was based on his contention that he had turned the transaction over to another automobile salesman, William S. Willis, part-time employe of a Haledon (N. J.) agency He had done this, he testified, after he had learned that Boyd was an investigator.

Harris had Willis deliver the car to Boyd last February 5. At that time, several papers covering the transaction, were signed, one of them being a receipt for the machine.

The prosecution, thru the testimony of a handwriting expert, attempted to show that on the receipt, the name of Harris as the seller had been erased, and Willis' name substituted. The testimony of the handwriting expert, who asserted that several of the papers covering the sale had been altered, caused Chief Justice Frederic Kernochan to order Harris remanded for further investigation.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wimberley, a son, Tuesday.

T. H. Simpson and Mrs. M. M. Beck and daughter, Miss Ann, will leave today (Friday) for St. Louis. From that city Mr. Simpson will go to Centralia, Mo., to visit his granddaughter, Mrs R. E. Ausmus and family. Mrs. Beck and Miss Ann will return to Sikeston Saturday.

Mrs. N. R. Stroup of Cincinnati, Ohio, is expected Sunday for a visit with her cousin, Mrs. H. C. Young and family.

OILERS TAKE FIRST GAME OF CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

The Simpson Oilers defeated he the first close, lively game of the first close, livley game of the muny league championship which was played Tuesday afternoon at the baseball park here.

The Oilers managed to chalk up three runs in the first inning, a score which was equaled by their opponents by the end of the third. In the fourth, Potashnick players took two more runs, their last, while Simpson got three and two more in the fifth.

The game was featured by a home run by R. Bandy in the fifth inning, a double play in the second, and three-base hits by Limbaugh in the second and by Jones in the fourth.

Sells pitched for the winners and Sutton caught; while Dace, Law and Kindred pitched for Potashnick and Limbaugh caught.

The series, consisting of five games, the champion to win at least three, is being played on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The matches are attracting widespread interest because of the close rivalry between the two teams. Admission at the gate is 10 cents a person

The following play by play account of Tuesday's game was written by Leo Smith:

First Inning

COCHRAN

ROOSEVELT'S FRIEND AND HELPER

SEND HIM to the SENATE

"The Man Who gets Things Done"

Congressman JOHN J. COCHRAN

"I cannot close this campaign without mentioning the women and children of the farm, whose privations and hardships during recent years have been little short of pitiful. And I want the farm women of Missouri and the country to now that if I am elected to the Senate, God helping me, I will do what I can to the end that the good work which the Roosevelt administration has begun in the farmer's interest, shall be carried forward with increasing determination until the people of the farm shall once more be able to pay their debts and to have their just share of the blessings of life."

Congressman JOHN J. COCHRAN

WORK and VOTE for COCHRAN

Democratic Candidate U. S. Senator

On primary day, Tuesday, August 7, you, Mr. Voter, will select the man to represent you in Washington for the next six years. In this period of the nation's distress, men are needed in the Congress who will, effectively follow the President's leadership. Congressman Cochran—with 21 years' official activity as congressman and legislative secretary in Washington—is especially equipped for the job. He speaks for the distressed farmer as forcefully as for the unemployed city man. Missouri leaders of national thought are for him.

NATIONAL LEADERS SPEAK FOR COCHRAN

JAMES A. FARLEY

Postmaster General, member of President Roosevelt's cabinet, warm personal friend and political adviser of the President.

Upon the occasion of the laying of the cornerstone of the new Federal Building in St. Louis, Mr. Farley said:

"His interests are not bounded by city and state lines. He has always placed his country's good above his personal friendships and his personal advantages. Foremost in the fight for the people's rights, he is loved by all who are aligned with him in this battle and respected and feared by those who are not. I refer to the Hon. John J. Cochran, your Representative in Congress, of whom you may well be proud."

CHAS. M. HAY

City Counselor of St. Louis, Democratic Senatorial nominee in 1928.

"I was for Congressman Cochran when he first announced but I am stronger for him now than ever. I felt then, as I feel now, that his native ability, his long and varied experience in Washington and his perfect genius for getting things done, make him, by all odds, the best fitted man for the Senate in the race.

"I have been asked whether the organization Democrats of St. Louis are for him. I said "yes" but he would carry St. Louis if every organization Democrat were against him because the people are for him. Cochran has been the people's friend and they have made him their candidate."

WILLIAM HIRTH

President Missouri Farmers' Association, Editor Missouri Farmer.

"I am for Cochran . . . . . In their opening addresses both opponents of Cochran implied that the farmer's troubles are largely over, while Cochran pointed out that the NRA codes have largely wiped out the advance in farm prices, and that he is in FAVOR OF TAKING MORE AGGRESSIVE STEPS, and thus he has come closer to sizing up the real farm situation than have these self-styled "dirt farmers."

"From information I have received from different parts of the state, I believe the contest lays between Cochran and Truman, and voters should take this fact into account.---If I am correct in the latter belief, then it is up to the farm men and women of Missouri to decide between the plain-spoken Cochran, who is his own boss, or Judge Truman, who is the choice of Pendergast of Kansas City."

J. W. ALEXANDER

Secretary of Commerce in President Wilson's cabinet, former Congressman, intimate political and personal friend of the late United States Senator William Joel Stone, Champ Clark and Gov. A. M. Dockery.

To Congressman Cochran:

"In view of your long and able service in the House and knowledge of the responsibility confronting the Democratic party and your fitness for the solution of these problems I highly endorse your candidacy for the nomination. You are free from all factional and political alliance in the party that would handicap you in the very responsible work with which you will be charged. The Democracy should give your candidacy their very thoughtful consideration, naming you as the party nominee."

OUT-OF-TOWN PRINTER!

Every week there are traveling around so-called peddlers with various kinds of merchandise. Among these are printing salesmen. If you are figuring on some printing, no matter how large or small in amount, you owe it to yourself to investigate a bit.

It's a Slap in the Face to Local Labor

Many printers maintain homes and support families in our community. Business has been scarce enough when divided among local printers. Why give the work to strangers?

Who Pays the Taxes In Our City?

Is it the local printer, publisher or the out of town printer? The out of town printer has no local investment and wants none.

As To Guarantee

Your local printer is always here, should an adjustment be necessary, while you might have a little trouble finding the out of town printer to get his guarantee fulfilled. It will pay you to consult your local printer before purchasing printing of any kind.

The Twice-A-Week Sikeston Standard

Has always met competitive bids and everyone will tell you that you get your work when you want it and it really has a guarantee.

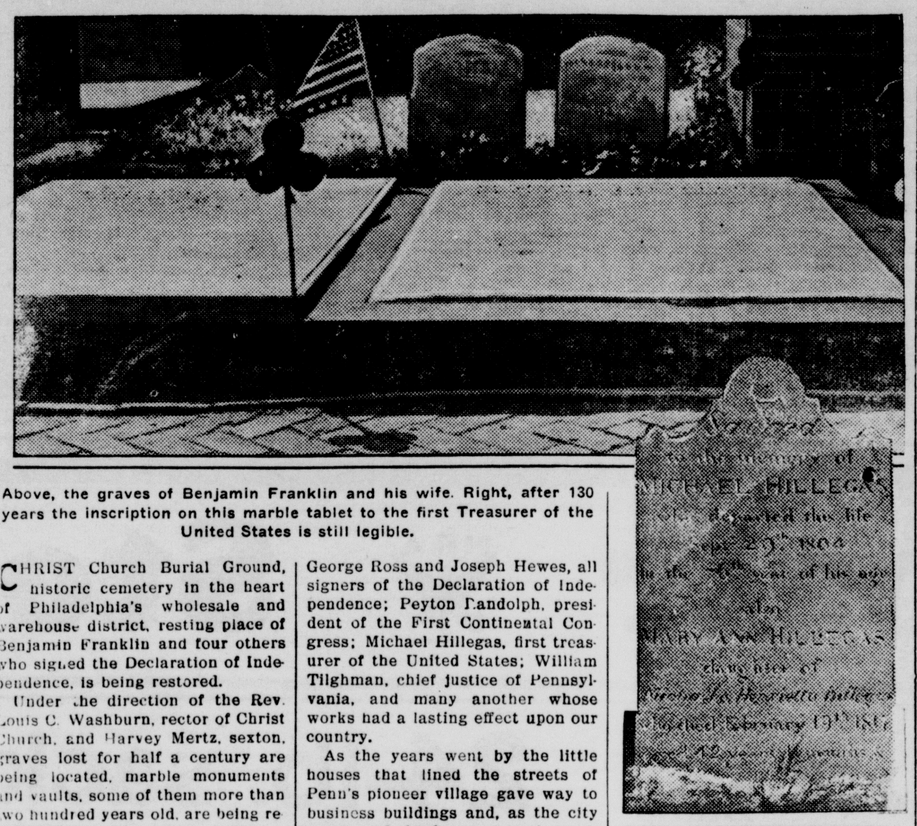
MONUMENTS IN OLD CHURCH CEMETERY RECALL EARLY HISTORY OF COUNTRY



Above, the graves of Benjamin Franklin and his wife. Right, after 130 years the inscription on this marble tablet to the first Treasurer of the United States is still legible.

CHRIST Church Burial Ground, historic cemetery in the heart of Philadelphia's wholesale and warehouse district, resting place of Benjamin Franklin and four others who signed the Declaration of Independence, is being restored.

Under the direction of the Rev. Louis C. Washburn, rector of Christ Church, and Harvey Mertz, sexton, graves lost for half a century are being located, marble monuments and vaults, some of them more than two hundred years old, are being replaced in their original positions, and the entire plot is being made into a place of beauty consonant with its historic associations.

Founded in 1719, seventy years before Washington became President and a year after the death of William Penn, the little cemetery became the last resting place of some of the most prominent citizens of colonial days. There in one corner lie Franklin and his wife, Deborah, in a marble tomb, the construction of which Franklin himself supervised. There also are Benjamin Rush, Francis Hopkinson, George Ross and Joseph Hewes, all signers of the Declaration of Independence; Peyton Randolph, president of the First Continental Congress; Michael Hillegas, first treasurer of the United States; William Tilghman, chief justice of Pennsylvania, and many another whose works had a lasting effect upon our country.

As the years went by the little houses that lined the streets of Penn's pioneer village gave way to business buildings and, as the city grew and business moved westward, these in turn became industrial buildings and warehouses. But the little burial ground, now surrounded by a tall brick wall, remained intact.

In the scores of years that have elapsed since most of the burials took place, many who were buried there were forgotten. Tombs and headstones, neglected, sank beneath the ground.

Guided by a record made in 1865, Mr. Mertz has uncovered more than a dozen markers that had been completely covered with earth and ivy vines. Only the other day he found the headstone that had marked the grave of Joseph, son of Charles Willing, the first mayor of Philadelphia, who passed away in 1760.

Incidentally, Mr. Mertz would like to learn something of J. Gullen, one of the early stone carvers whose name is inscribed on several of the memorials in the cemetery. Mr. Mertz estimates that his work was done about 1812. Several monuments bear the characteristic marks of his chisel even though they do not bear his name.

MALARIA

Speedy Relief of Chills and Fever

Don't let Malaria tear you apart with its racking chills and burning fever. Trust to no home-made or mere makeshift remedies. Take the medicine prepared especially for Malaria—Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic gives real relief from Malaria because it's a scientific combination of tasteless quinine and tonic iron. The quinine kills the Malarial infection in the blood. The iron builds up the system and helps fortify against further attack. At the first sign of any attack of Malaria take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. Better still take it regularly during the Malaria season to ward off the disease. Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic is absolutely harmless and tastes good.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic now comes in two sizes, 50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2½ times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money. Get a bottle today at any store

NAZARENE EVANGELIST TO BE HERE AUGUST 12

Dr. A. S. London, general Sunday school Evangelist of the Church of the Nazarene, will be here Sunday, August 12, to speak at three services which will be held at the Sikeston Nazarene church.

During the morning he will talk first at the Sunday school session at 9:30 o'clock and then at the morning church services at 11 o'clock.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon he will preach at a zone rally in which fifteen Nazarene churches of this territory will participate. Men and women are expected to come here from Poplar Bluff, Oxley, Dexter, Bernie, Malden, Carruthersville, Charleston, Cape Girardeau, Bell City, Dequilla, Bloomfield, Holcomb and Morehouse, to attend the meeting, which will be augmented by special music.

Dr. London, an evangelist of national prominence, has traveled through forty states during the course of a work which he has conducted for numerous years. He is the author of four books, and over a period of twenty years he has served as president of three Nazarene colleges in different parts of the United States.

When he comes here, Dr. London will be accompanied by his wife and daughter.

THE EDITOR SAYS—

A housewife has asked us to say that the place for hucksters and peddlers to sell thir produce is at the kitchen door instead of the front door. Most housewives are to be found in the kitchen in the morning hours and dislike to answer the front door bell.

And did our face get red! Last week a four-line paragraph in The Standard stated "why go without when you can get panties for 10c". Well, in our visiting rounds we dropped into this place of business and several of the sales girls gathered around and presented us with a pair of dainty pink ones, then remarked, "and is his face red". It seems like a fellow never gets too old to be slightly embarrassed at times.

Sally Rand is certainly good to me! One of the finest specimens of art in our gallery came from Kansas City Monday evening and now occupies a prominent place among other works. It is done in water colors, handsomely framed and is beautiful to behold. There was not even a bubble to hide the curves.

The Sunset school opened Monday, and Tuesday when the editor visited out there, 104 pupils had enrolled, 15 of whom were in the High School. A cleaner looking and better dressed bunch of pupils will not be found in any school in this section. Mighty good work is being done by these teachers to make these boys and girls useful citizens. Self respect is the foundation of good citizenship and this is being impressed on the minds of these pupils.

Ex-President Wilson's daughter and President Roosevelt's daughter received divorces while they waited. "Incompatability" is the reason, whatever that is. After seeing the pictures of both men, it appears the reason should have been they wanted a younger man.

George E. Allen, member of District of Columbia's Governing Commission, spent two weeks "bumming" in the nation's bread lines. He wanted to find out personally about relief and employment. "The snootiest people on earth are running the federal relief agencies," he reported. He added he was convinced that 98 per cent of the people on relief want a job and are not willfully imposing on charity. The employment system is wrong from beginning to end, he said.

For the size of our colored population Sikeston has the largest per cent of Colored Reverends of any city in this section. Colored folks have more religion than any race of people known. It matters not how bad an actor some of them are, these colored preachers can touch a responsive chord in their makeup and bring forth ferent amens. Long may these preachers live and may God give them strength to carry on as they get little money to meet their needs.

No doubt by this time the Federal courts will have appointed the Conciliation Commissioners who will administer the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill in the different counties, and farmers who are thinking of taking advantage of this act should get in touch with this official and find out where they stand, and according to the latest interpretation farmers do not need to employ an attorney, as the commissioners will give all the advice that is needed. That the above bill will make Christians out of some of the mortgage companies which have heretofore demanded the last penny due them I had occasion to find out some days ago; a certain member of the Missouri Farmers' Association had been offered a loan by the Federal Land Bank in St. Louis which came within about $300 of covering the mortgage which is held by a life insurance company, and when the farmer asked the company to trim down its obligation in the above amount its answer was, "We want all that is due us or we will foreclose,' and to show that they weren't bluffing they began immediate court proceedings. In his desperation the farmer came to Columbia to talk things over witth me, and as soon as I got the facts I sent a wire to the above company in which I said that unless they called off the foreclosure proceedings, and presented a more reasonable attitude, we would proceed under the Frazier-Lemke Bill, and immediately they informed the farmer that the foreclosure proceedings would be postponed.—Wm. Hirth.

Anthony Kalitch, his wife and their son went to Chicago from Youngstown, Ohio, to see the World's Fair. They rented an apartment, placed $200 spare cash in a mattress and started out. But when time came to go home, they had forgotten the address. For two days police took them scouting, to no avail. Then they advertised and asked my landlady with a missing tenant to reply. They're safe [illegible].

Semo Fire Fighters to Attend 2-Day School in Caruthersville

About ten men are expected to go from Sikeston to Caruthersville August 15 to attend the fifth annual short course fire school of the Southeast Missouri Fire Fighters' Association which will be held there for two days.

During the afternoon session August 16, John A. Young, Siksteon fire chief, will instruct a class in salvage demonstration to teach fire fighters methods which may be adapted to the needs of departments as determined by available equipment and man power.

After registration at the Caruthersville fire department headquarters, Victor Malloure, Caruthersville fire chief and president of the Southeast Missouri organization, will open the school. He will then introduce J. Burr Taylor, secretary of the Missouri State Fire Prevention Association in St. Louis, who will present preliminary instructions.

Following an address of welcome by D. D. Pinion, mayor of Caruthersville, the school will continue with a demonstration and discussion of electrical conductivity of fire extinguishing liquids by George C. Monroe of the Missouri inspection bureau and a discussion of fire problems and the utilization of fire blocks or miniature buildings led by M. I. Parker, also of the Missouri inspection bureau.

At the afternoon session August 15 Captain H. C. Ousley, of the Missouri Inspection Bureau, will instruct members of the association in hose and ladder evolutions, and Chief Harry K. Rogers, chief of the Western Acturial Bureau in Chicago, will demonstrate first aid and resuscitation.

Bfore dinner Raymond Schuermann of the State Inspection Bureau will conduct an engineer's school, and immediately following it the school will reconvene for a round table discussion of fire department problems with Mr. Rogers in charge.

At 8:30 o'clock that evening members of the Caruthersville fire department will present a special program at the drill tower.

The following morning will be devoted to instruction in first aid and resuscitation, inhalators, and gas masks by Mr. Rogers and by an inspector's school, during which men will be taken through a designated building and shown how to examine it.

That afternoon, after the salvage demonstration by Mr. Young and a hose and ladder evolutions at the drill tower presented by Captain Ousley, thre will be a business session at which officrs will be elected and a place chosen for the 1935 school.

Harry C. Young is secretary of the Southeast Missouri Fire Fighters' Association and Louis A. Perrett, fire chief of Bonne Terre, is vice-president.

Women Found Guilty Of Assault and Battery

When the thermometer reaches or exceeds 90 degrees, the percentage of assault and battery charges among men increases 68 per cent and doubles in the case of women, according to statisticians. This may be true. At any rate, the increasing frequency of minor battles in Sikeston is apparent.

Tuesday morning about fifty men and women who live in Frisco addition, went to the police court to learn the fates of two of their neighbors, Jewell Price and Thelma Ramsey, who were accused of assault and battery after George Praul had filed a complaint.

The two women had entered the Praul home that morning, dragged Mrs. Praul from it, and beat her. Because they had been "insulted", the women said, their action was justifiable. Mrs. Praul, with a blackened eye and scratches on her face and neck, disagreed. So did her husband.

After a trial, the women were found guilty of the charges by Judge W. H. Carter and were each fined $10 and costs.

Two Escape Injuries When Car Overturns

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Fish miraculously escaped severe injury early Tuesday evening when the car in which they were riding was almost completely destroyed after it had turned over four times on Highway 60, east of town.

Mr. Fish, driving his automobile, a 1932 Chevrolet coupe, east toward Charleston, his home, started to pass another machine soon after he left the outskirts of Sikeston.

Th operator of the other car, however, began at the same time to make a left turn, and when Mr. Fish continued to attempt to pass the other car, he saw a man walking on the left side of the highway.

Driving on, he managed to complete the pass by barely running over the side of the pedestrian's shoe and by sideswiping the front fender of the automobile. But since he had been forced to leave the pavement, he struck a culvert which caused a tire to blow out.

He managed to guide his car onto the highway again, but quick swervings and the condition of the tire made his car so unsteady that it turned over several times.

The car loss was almost complete, but Mr. and Mrs. Fish, tho' they were dazed and slightly bruised, were not hurt.

Scout Leaders Attended Meet Near Cape Monday

George W. Kirk, president of the Southeast Missouri Area Council of Boy Scouts and several Sikeston Scout leaders attended a meeting of Scout supervisors which was held Monday evening at the Cape Girardeau Troop 1 cabin located west of Cape of discuss plans for a fall memberschip drive. About forty men who live in the northern part of the area's territory were present.

Presiding at the session, Mr. Kirk led a discussion concerning a need for interesting more boys and Southeast Missouri residents in Scout work, and Cecil G. Morrison, Scout executive, reviewed the organization's activities during the last three years and mentioned plans for this fall and winter.

Men at the meeting decided to ask members of Boy Scout troops to arouse interest in Scouting among their contemporaries in order that more groups may be formed. There are now 790 Scouts registered in thirty-six troops of the area and six sub organizations with a total membership of eighty-seven boys.

Those attending also tentatively set the time of the fall roundup in Cape Girardeau for November though no definite date was set.

In addition to men from Cape Girardeau and Illmo, and Mr. Kirk, the following Scout workers of Sikeston were present at the meeting: A. M. Jackson, Joe Sarsar, David Keasler, Walter Rayburn, and G. H. Dover.

GIVEN TEN-YEAR TERM FOR HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Walter Gregory was sentenced to serve ten years in the penitentiary after he was convicted of highay robbery by a Pemiscot county jury Tuesday.

Gregory, charged with holding up a Portageville filling station attendant, was tried in Pemiscot county by Judge J. V. Billings of Kennett on a change of venue from New Madrid county.

James Flowers, who was accused of complicity in the same holdup, had previously been given a ten-year prison term.

Miss Eunice Thomasson, who is attending the Teachers' College at Cape Girardeau, spent the weekend in Sikeston, the guest of Miss Nadine Sellards.

Truman Flays Opponents On Last Tour Of State

Confining his attack to the records of his opponents for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, Judge Harry S. Truman of Independence, in a talk here Wednesday night, discussed what he termed the "eleventh - hour" conversion of John J. Cochran of St. Louis to being a friend of the farmer.

He said that Cochran, as secretary to William L. Igoe, when the present head of the St. Louis police board was a representative in Congress, to former Senator Harry B. Hawes, and to the late Senator William J. Stone, had had eleven years experience in answering demands of farmers for relief written to his employers.

Also, for the decade or more in which Cochran had been in Congress as a member of the house, similar pleas had reached him occasionally, Truman said.

"More than twenty years elapsed from the time Mr. Cochran as secretary to Mr. Igoe first got information on farm woes until the vote was taken on the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill in 1929. In that time he had seen or was a party to countless petitions, memorials, debates in committee and on the floor of Congress, on farm relief.

"He received numerous copies of reports on continuously lessening farm income, measured against a vast concentration of wealth in other business activities. He saw farm tenantcy increase. He knew that farm mortgages were increasing rapidly He was a witness to lowered buying power of farmers. He saw poverty staring them in the face. After twenty-one years of this personal experience, he voted against the McNary-Haugen bill, the first great measure to reach Congress to relieve farm problems.

"He voted against this measure even while his present friend and advocate, William Hirth of Columbia, president of the Missouri Farm Bureau, was in Washington beseeching him to aid the farmer. Now Cochran alleges himself a friend of the farmer, while Hirth stands by to render first aid to him in his ambition to be a United States Senator.

"What does this unnatural alliance bode for the farmer? What does it mean to the great cotton industry of this city and to the farmers producing that great commodity on the farms nearby?

"Further than this. Mr. Cochran, when moves were made in the House to conform to the wishes of President Roosevelt to grant him emergency powers in the face of the chaos in which we were obscured following the Hoover administration, termed this relegation of power to the President in the emergency as 'cowardly.' Yet every great benefit the farmer has obtained from the national administration came by virtue of that grant of power.

"Every benefit they ever will obtain flowed from that same transfer of power that Mr. Cochran termed as 'cowardly'. The very idea that the farm should, like industry, receive an assured profit, arose out of the powers given President Roosevelt.

"Mr. Cochran now tells the voters he is a friend of the farmer. Where can he show one single bit of proof of that statement? His entire public career is colered with enmity toward the farmer, from his vote against the McNary-Haugen bill to his noted observation that 'the farmer is a fool; he can't help himself and nobody else should help him'."

Stating that a man will be known for the company he keeps, Truman said that Jacob L. Milligan, another opponent, was damned by his alliance with Senator Bennet C. Clark, who, he said, was an open enemy of the President and who boasted that he wished "engraved on his tombstone as his epitaph the fact that he had voted against the National Industrial Recovery Act."

"My two main opponents are tied into the same bundle of opposition to President Roosevelt and his policies of aid for the farmer and the common man. I cannot vision either of them, in view of the records they have in Congress, either being on the square with their pretensions of friendship for the farmer and the masses of us or with sympathy for President Roosevelt's concern for the worker.

"You farmers here who have obtained great benefits on cotton growing are asked to vote for a man who, with a flood of information at hand over two decades, would not stir to aid you and who manifested no sympathy with your plight until he became a candidate for the Senate and needed your vote. I was a farmer for twelve years. I saw farming, not from the marbled corridors of a Washington building, but from between the plow handles. I see it yet from that vantage point.

"Mr. Cochran, as a member of Congress, is now facing approval or disapproval of the President's plan to bring security to old age, to assurance of employment or pay to every worker when idle, and to efforts to extend home ownership in the United States. He says he is in favor of it, but the man who termed 'cowardly' the transfer of unusual powers to the President to cure evils when the country was prostrate may not be reckoned upon to stand staunchly by the President in view of the extraordinary legislation the President's plans will require.

"I stand four-square for any laws needed to abolish the truly terrible lack of proportion in the distribution of wealth. I know that this country is headed for destruction as long as 4 per cent of the people own 90 per cent of the wealth and millions of men and women are starving because the machine owners are allowed to absorb all the profits of machine and mass assembly."

Before Judge Truman spoke he was introduced to a large crowd by Mayor G. W. H. Presnell.

From here Judge Truman went to Portageville, Hayti, Steele, and Caruthersville, where he addressed voters on Thursday. Today he is scheduled to end his Southeast Missouri tour after speaking at Kennett, Malden, Dexter, and Poplar Bluff.

POWER COMPANY CUTS KENNETT LIGHT RATES

Officials of the Arkansas-Missouri Power Company announced Tuesday that they would reduce by 14 per cent electricity rates in Kennett and Caruthersville, beginning August 15.

On the day the rates become effective, the city of Kennett will advertise for bids for the erection of a municipal light plant, to be built partly with a $150,000 PWA loan.

Stoutly opposing the move, the power company has filed an injunction suit in the federal cour in Cape Girardeau to prveent construction of the plant. The city may file an answer before August 16.

ARCADIA VALLEY HOSPITAL TO BE DEDICATED AUGUST 5

The Arcadia Valley Hospital, reopening under the direction of the Sisters of St. Mary, who conduct the St. Mary's Hospital and the Firmin Desloge Hospital in St. Louis, as well as a number of other hospitals, will be dedicated Sunday, August 5th, by Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis. A band concert will precede the dedication ceremonies.

Speakers at the dedication will be Rev. Leo J. Steck of St. Louis; Doctor George Gay, chief of staff of the hospital, of Ironton; Judge Robert Rasche, Mayor of Ironton; Doctor S. C. Slaughter of Fredericktown; and Archbishop Glennon.

Solemn benediction will be given on the grounds of the hospital and the Vincentian Seminarians of Perryville, will sing the hymns for benediction.

Mrs. M. F. Sills of Metter, Ga expelled from a Primitive Baptist church because she married a divorced man, has sued the pastor, elders and clerks of the church for $10,000 damages. She claims her reputation was damaged to that extent by her dismissal from the church.

Company K Prepared to Leave For Camp Clark

Members of Company K of the 140th Infantry, 35th Division of the Missouri National Guard are making final preparations for their trip to Camp Clark at Nevada, Mo., Saturday.

At the Armory Wednesday evening Captain Rufus R. Reed instructed his men on preparations for the fifteen-day encampment and advised them concerning equipment which they should take.

The men will assemble at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon in order that they may be able to leave at 1:30 on a special Missouri Pacific train for Camp Clark, via Charleston, DeLassus, and Bismark, where members of various Southeast Missouri companies will be met.

With about 3500 National Guardsmen at the camp, members of Company K will drill, execute maneauvers and otherwise demonstrate what they have learned in their training period during the year.

Besides officers and members of Company K, Major Harry E. Dudley of the 3rd Battalion of the 140th Infantry and Captain A. D. Sheppard, who commands Company I of Doniphan, will go to the camp from Sikeston.

On Wednesday morning, Captain Tanner C. Dye, supply officer, and Joe Cannon Jr., of Caruthersville, who came to Sikeston to accompany Captain Dye, left here to join the headquarters regiment at Cape Girardeau in order that they might entrain for camp.

The roster of Company K is printed below.

Sikeston Represented In Fire Show At Cape

John A. Young, Sikeston fire chief, and Roy Beard and Milburn Arbaugh, city firemen, went to Cape Girardeau Thursday to participate in the first annual fire show which was presented at 7:30 o'clock at the fire department headquarters by members of the Cape Girardeau department and those of other Southeast Missouri towns.

With firemen from Charleston and Chaffee, the Sikeston men presented a salvage demonstration which was intended to illustrate various methods used to protect property from water damage. The demonstration consisted chiefly of throwing tarpaulins over furniture. Working together, Sikeston firemen protected furniture on the first floor of the demonstration building, while those from Chaffee and Charleston executed similar maneuvers on the second and third floors.

Th show was opened by an address by Edward L. Drum, mayor of Cape Girardeau, and by a talk on "Duties of Firemen" by Paul R. Brooks, fire commissioner.

Th speeches were followed by a demonstration of modern fire fighting methods which was given by the Cape Girardeau and Illmo departments and by a rescue demonstration by the Cape Girardeau, Illmo, Chaffee, and Charleston firemen to show the manner of handling persons when they are taken from burning quarters. In connection with this act, Walter Weaver of Poplar Bluff, said to be one of the fastest ladder climbers in Southeast Missouri, performed.

The rest of the program included a drill showing how firemen are taught to hook up hose quickly, life saving and life belt demonstrations by Roy Smith, drill master at Cape Girardeau, a salvage cover throwing contest in which the Sikeston firemen participated, a demonstration of rope sliding, which is used when all other means of escape are eliminated, and a cellar fire demonstration by the Jackson and Dexter departments to illustrate how a cellar blaze may be controlled from the floor above.

Firemen participating in the show, in addition to those from Sikeston, were Dick Dunn, chief, and E. Lash, J. Arnold, William Clinton, "Slick" Gentery, and V. Chron, all of Charleston; A. Varble, chief, and C. Varble, M. Allen, W. Merrill, H. Schoen, and S. Musgraves, all of Chaffee; G. A. Martin, chief, and Frank Martin and L. D. Davidson, of Illmc; R. D. Boyer, chief, and Waldow Stewart, both of Dexter; Fred Kirpatrick, chief, and Walter Weaver, both of Poplar Bluff; C. Steck, chief, and M. Poe, both of Jackson; and G. D. French, chief, Roy Smith, drill master, P. L. Niswonger, H. Rabe, Otto Fowler, R. Kammer, and L. Allen, firemen; V. Unnerstall, F. McElroy, and C. Keller, volunteers, and Paul Davidson, B. X. Walker and Virginia Swan, assistants in rescue work, all of Cape Girardeau.

Negro Woman Released for Killing Aged Husband

Charleston, July 30.—A coroner's jury today returned a verdict of justifiable homicide in the case brought up today by Coroner Paul Heckney.

Pauline Clark, 37, who yesterday shot and killed her husband, Robert Clark, 69, was released, as the case soon brought forth the fact that it was self-defense, Clark having made repeated attacks on his wife and having fired at her with a shot gun yesterday. Clark was killed with a 12 guage shot gun, No. 4 shot being used.

The charge entered the left side of his mouth and almost tore his head off. Clark had been drinking, and, according to eye witnesses, said that he would kill his wife before sundown, and that he would kill him if they didn't get out of his way.

Frank Edge, commonly known as "Pork Chops", said that he was at the house when the shooting occurred. The house where the killing occurred is owned by the General American Insurance Co., and is located about eight or ten miles east of East Prairie.

Edge stated that Robert Clark was overbalanced by whiskey all day, and that in the afternoon he go so unruly that they could not do anything with him. Suddenly he made a rush at his wife and said he was going to kill her. Edge separated them, and then went out of the house to the barn where he was watering the mules when he heard a commotion. He started back to the house and saw Clark chasing his wife out of the back door.

The couple ran around the house and in through the front door. He said that Pauline came out of the back door, but that Clark stopped and got a single barrelled shot gun from the house. When he got out of the house, Clark shot once at his wife and kept chasing her.

Edge said that Clark was fumbling with his pocket, as if to get another shell. He said that Pauline ran around to the front door and got another gun, a 12 guage pump gun and came on out of the house. Clark started chasing her again and kept repeating, "I'll kill you! I'll kill you".

Pauline told him to stop and when he didn't, she shot him.

The inquest disclosed that Clark had been a habitual drunkard for several years, and that he has repeatedly tried to kill his wife, once with a butcher knife, another time with an axe, and still another with a shot gun. At the time he was shot, he was trying to get close enough to use the gun as a club to hit his wife.

The coroner's jury was composed of J. L. Simpson, Walter Rowe, F. D. Davis, Homer Lynn, Sam Rajotte and W. H. Barnett.

PROPOSED BID FOR LITTLE RIVER DISTRICT OPPOSED

Letters urging bondholders of the Little River Drainage District not to approve the RFC's proposal to refund $8,180,000 in defaulted bonds on the basis of 30 cents on a $1 valuation, 3 cents higher than would have been granted under an earlier plan, have been sent out recently by officials of the recently organized National Association of Investors in Drainage and Levee District Securities.

Stating that the proposal is unfair because the district is able to afford a better settlement and because it subordinates the lien of bondholders to that of mortgage holders, the letters may be instrumental in delaying a final approval of the federal government's loan, it is thought.

The district embraces 560,000 acres of land in Cape Girardeau, Stoddard, Scott, New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin countis, through which the drainage ditch passes before it finally empties into Big Lake, Ark. The bonds have been in default since October, 1929, and to provide for refinancing, officiais of the RFC tentatively approved lending $2,488,000 to the district, an amount which equals $300 for $1000 in bonds.

Numerous persons believe that bondholders would be unwise not to accept these terms since the value of the dollar is much lower now than it was at the time the bonds were purchased and since the bondholders themselves would be almost certain to not nothing at all if they foreclosed.

Heads of the newly formed organization, however, do not agree, contending that the amount of the RFC loan does not represent the full capacity to pay off the district and that although the RFC is allowed to liquidate the loan during a thirty-three year period, the district commissioners requested one which would be liquidated in sixteen years.

"Early this year," they have stated in the letters, "after making a most thorough and exhaustive examination of the district, the RFC authorized a loan of $2,188,914, equivalent to approximately $273 per $1000 bond. Holders of a large block of these bonds refused to accept the proffered devaluation, and as evidence of the correctness of their position, the RFC last July 5 established a precedent by reviewing the application of this district and increasing the amount of the loan by $500,000, which will bring the total per $1000 bond to approximately $300.

"The report of the RFC indicates that approximately 240,000 acres of the district are in cultivation and the amount of the loan to the district was predicted solely on this acreage, excluding the remaining acreage in the district as being marginal or nonproductive land.

"The RFC report further shows that the annual requirements for interest and amortization on the recommended loan of $2,188,914 would be $207,224, whereas, the annual amount actually collected in the district, based on an average of the last five years, was $371,493, while the estimated ability of the improved and cultivated lands alone is given at $377,782. In other words, according to the RFC report, the cultivated land in the district is capable of producing an annual income of $164,000 a year in excess of the annual requirements of the proposed loan, which excess, together with the above stated amount, if extended over the 33-year period allowed by the law, would pay the interest and amortization of a loan of $6,000,000 at 4 per cent interest per annum.

"While a majority of the bondholders of this district have directly or tacitly approved the loan of $273 per $1000 bond, it seems safe to say many of them have done so without even an effort to ascertain the intrinsic value of their bonds or the tax-paying ability of the land on which their bonds are secured by lien superior to first mortgage deeds of trust and all other obligations excluding only general taxes. Furthermore, it seems obviously unfair to use that the holders of these bonds, which are in effect a first lien against the land, should be asked to accept a 70 per cent loss on their investment when the holders of mortgages which are a second lien are not asked to make any sacrifice whatever."

A new motion picture is named "Here Comes the Groom". It is about time that the poor guy was getting a little attention.

The ladies are more interested in what a bride is married in than what she's married to.

Whenever words of comfort seem to fall short of the situation we are reminded of the cemetery salesman who was trying to sell a lot to a little old lady. He wound up by saying, "Just think, wouldn't it be a great comfort to know that after you die you would be buried beside this beautiful lake?" "What!" exclaimed his prospect, "with my rheumatism?"

But a few more days for our political bosses to huddle with the floating vote and look important. In every community there are a few fellows who try to look sufficiently important to attract the attention of the candidate with a little money to spend. There have been times, so we are told, when a man with a jug of whiskey could lead great droves of voters to the polls, but that day has passed to never return. White and colored alike who have any self respect, have learned to think for themselves and decide on the candidate who they believe will best represent them. Anyway, if finances are to influence your vote, get all you can from every one, then vote as you please.

With an oat crop that was hardly worth harvesting, and with the corn crop blasted in all but a handful of counties in Southeast Missouri, farmers should lose no time in providing themselves with seed corn and seed oats for next year, and in each case I would make my reservations from last year's oats and corn. In my opinion we will witness the greatest scramble for seed next spring the country has ever known, and therefore the time to buy is now, and this is likewise true of corn and oats for feed next winter. In fact, I seriously doubt whether there is enough old corn in the country to last until a new crop is produced, and thus this is another matter farmers should be thinking about.—Wm. Hirth.

I advise all farmers to sow rye or winter barley for winter pasture, and to sow it early enough so that with rain it will be available during the early winter months, and where winter barley seed can be obtained I would prefer it to rye not only because I think it makes better pasture, but because it doesn't reflect itself so much in the taste of milk from dairy cows. Because of the desperate lack of hay and other forage, farmers will need winter pasture as never before, and the sooner they make their plans to this end the better. From 10 to 20 acres of winter barley sown early will go a long way in getting the average farmer's horses, cows, hogs and sheep through the winter.—Wm. Hirth.

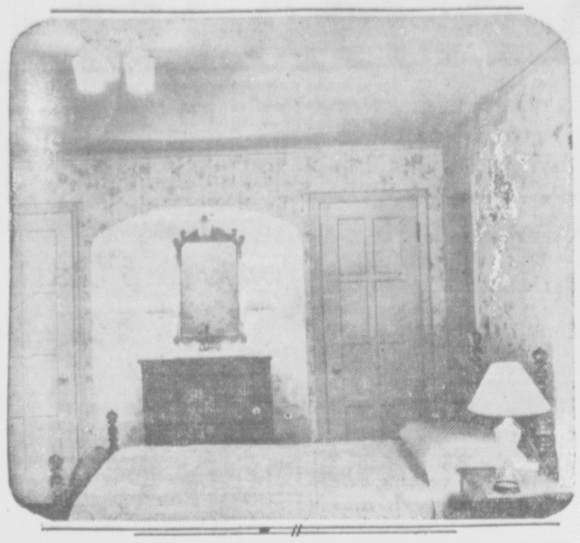
Light for the Bedroom

By Helen G. Toland



Good lighting in the bedroom is an invaluable aid in "getting the effect of a frock," finding the right accessories in the bureau drawers, and locating elusive collar buttons.

ONE by one, science is smashing Life's lovely illusions. The latest to go is the chubby little lamp with the highly colored shade that was wont to hold sway in milady's chamber. Science has pushed it off the bedside table once and for all, by declaring that the human eye requires quite as much light to read in bed, as it does to read any place else.

Purpose of "Boudoir" Lamps

The ten units of light which normal eyes need as a minimum for comfortable reading cannot be supplied by anything less than a 60-watt lamp bulb, and the so-called "boudoir lamp" usually boasted only a 25-watt. A comfortable reading posture implies a wide circle of useful light, which can be obtained only by a lamp with a reasonably tall base and broad shade. The boudoir lamp had neither. So since it provided too little light for reading, and didn't throw "that little" in the right place, it has been relegated to a decorative role in the home, and a new lamp has come to take its place on the bedside tables of the land.

Although the new lamp is really of some use, it is quite as attractive as the boudoir lamp. In general it is characterized by a tall base, but slender so that it does not appear out of scale with the small bedside table. The height of the base makes a broader shade suitable. This combination insures a wide circle of useful light on the book of the reader-in-bed, who can now enjoy a comfortable reading posture and no longer needs to be a contortionist. Neither is there any further need of squinting, for the new lamp, being larger, carries a lamp bulb of the 60-watt size, equal to the task of providing enough light for normal eyes.

For use between twin beds, the lamp with two arms, two bulbs, two shades is proving very popular, since it enables two to read comfortably as well as simultaneously. The convenient height of the junior floorlamp, its broad shade and three sockets combine to make it admirably suited to bedside service too.

Although these lamps are primarily practical, doing a real lighting job, they are in tune with the most frivolous bedrooms. The shades are tinted to carry out the color scheme of the room, quite as effectively as the highly colored shades on the old boudoir lamps. Deep color is not good for lamp shades, since it distorts the real color scheme of the room, and absorbs much of the light that our eyes really require.

Avoid High-Colored Shades

Again at the dressing table, shades of high color have been discarded, and in their place we find palely tinted or white shades. Twin lamps, tall enough to bring the lamp bulb at the face height of the person before the mirror, shaded in pale parchment, enable madame to see herself "as others see her," which any woman knows is a decided advantage.

In the bedroom the ceiling fixture comes into its own. In no other room in the house is there so much need of general illumination — to "get the effect" of a frock, to find the right accessories in bureau drawers and to aid in the location of elusive collar buttons. But even in the bedroom a bare bulb must be kept from view, so the center fixture must have shades, either small individual ones of glass or parchment, or a larger globe that shields the entire fixture from view.

JAMES SETH KEESEE

Funeral services for James Seth Keesee, 65-year-old Scott County farmer who died of a complication of diseases at his home two miles east of Morley late Thursday night, were held at the residence at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the Rev. C. R. Baker, pastor of the Morley Methodist church, officiating. Burial was in the Morley cemetery.

Mr. Keesee, who was born April 6, 1869, in Carlyle County, Kentucky, was a farmer. For fifteen years he had been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church at Perkins.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Allie Keesee, he is survived by a son, B. F. Keesee, of St. Louis; three daughters, Misses Mildred and Dorothy Keesee, both of the home, and Mrs. R. L. Dennis, of St. Louis; five brothers, Wm., Chas., Martin and Lewis Keesee, all of Illmo, and Tom Keesee, of Cape Girardeau; and two sisters, Mrs. Nancy Randolph, of Illmo, and Mrs. Martha Calbert, of Blodgett. Albritton service.

ARRESTED SATURDAY ON HARNESS THEFT CHARGE

Troopers Melvin Dace, John Tandy and Percy Little and Sheriff Joe Anderson and Scott County deputies were among a group of officers who arrested Joe Thompson at his home nine miles north of Cape Girardeau Saturday to question him concerning the theft of a set of wagon harness.

Frank Brands, of near Portageville, from whom the harness was stolen July 3, accompanied the officers and identified a set found at Thompson's home as his.

Thompson, who stated he bought the harness, valued at $40, from a stranger who said he was quitting farming, was taken to New Madrid County by Sheriff Sam Harris.

A COMFORTABLE REDUCING DIET

Who wouldn't enjoy reducing with such an array of appetizing eatables as shown above. Research workers say it can be done; that this business of taking off weight need not be a hardship.

Results of a study supervised by Dr. Leo K. Campbell of Rush Medical college, Chicago, reveal the fact that a person can reduce and still completely satisfy his appetite.

The diet used, of which the above foods are typical, is as follows:

TOP: Breakfast—1 serving of fruit; 1 egg; 1 slice of toast; 1 pat of butter; coffee (black or with very little cream and sugar)

CENTER: Luncheon—2 servings of vegetables (1 cooked and 1 raw); 1 small serving of lean meat, or 2 eggs, or 2 tablespoons cottage cheese; 1 slice of bread; 1 pat of butter; 1 glass of milk; 1 serving of fruit.

BOTTOM: Dinner—1 large serving of lean meat; 2 servings of vegetables (1 cooked and 1 raw); 1 slice of bread; 1 pat of butter; 1 glass of milk; 1 serving of fruit.

Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Orear and son, Eddie, and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Orrell are spending this week at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

Numerous articles have appeared in newspapers stating that the Bankhead Bill, tax on cotton, would likely be suspended for the crop year 1934 because of the existing drouth condition, according to B. W. Harrison who is to be in charge of the Bankhead work in New Madrid County. However, he is in receipt of a telegram from C. A. Cobb, Chief of the Cotton Section stating to "disregard newspaper statements regarding suspension of Bankhead Act. They apparently have their origin in an unauthorized statement appearing recently in an Eastern newspaper. To those who have been opposed to the cotton program all along this is choice propaganda and they are making the best of it".

Work will begin soon preparing the applications for tax exemption certificates for those who have signed 1934-35 Cotton Acreage Reduction Contracts. Everyone, regardless of whether or not they have signed a Cotton Reduction Contract, will have to file an application before any cotton can be sold free of tax. Applications will be partly prepared for those who have signed the regular reduction contracts at the County Agent's office. Local committeemen will be in charge in the various communities in completing applications and preparing applications for non-signers. Letters will be sent to all contract signers stating when, and whom, they may see to complete their application.

THE immediate and enthusiastic acceptance of the new Firestone Century Progress Tire started a tremendous wave of buying that is keeping the Firestone factories running twenty-four hours a day to meet this huge demand.

We knew that car owners would replace their thin-worn, dangerous tires if they could get what they wanted in a tire at the price they wanted to pay. We found the answer through ten million visitors to the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year. We asked them—"What do you value most in a tire?"—and their answer was — "Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a moderate price."

Drive in to the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store today! Equip your car with these new Firestone Century Progress Tires, with the massive flat tread, deep-cut, non-skid, broad husky shoulders, and Gum-Dipped cords. Tire prices probably never again will be as low as they are today. At these unusually low prices for first grade tires, we make it easy for you to buy not only one tire, but a complete set.

LITTLE AMERICA ★ ANTARCTICA

With Byrd at the South Pole

by C. A. Abele Jr. U.S.N.R. President

35

A DANGEROUS TRIP!

This tractor, with new body, will carry five men on history's most amazing trip.

LITTLE AMERICA, ANTARCTICA, July 20 (via Mackay Radio) —Tomorrow night! The start of the most astonishing journey ever made by mankind! An intrepid group of five men will leave here in a little French tractor, braving the Antarctic winter night, howling blizzards, temperatures of 60 and 75 degrees below zero, drifts of snow 40 and 50 feet deep and a wilderness of bottomless crevasses covered with thin sheils of snow. They will attempt to go 123 miles down to Bolling Advance Base at Latitude 80.13 South to get Admiral Byrd out of his tiny buried hut and bring him back to the civilization of Little America. And probably two of the number will remain there to make meteorological observations until the sun comes back to us on August 22. Some undertaking, eh?

The trip is bristling with deadly dangers, not the least of which is the possibility that the trail, marked out last February with little orange colored flags on bamboo sticks, has been obliterated by the howling, swirling blizzards.

And am I busy! The success of the trip and the lives of the men will depend entirely upon the efficient functioning of the little tractor, and the quality and operation of the gasoline and lubricating oil. As fuel engineer I feel a great sense of responsibility. I have had to drop my aviation work and assist Pete Demas, of Washington, D. C., and Bernard W. Skinner, of Winthrop, Me., in the preparation of the tractors for the trip. While only one tractor will start, two others will be held in readiness to go to its rescue at a moment's notice. The leader of the trip will be Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, of Mount Pleasant, Iowa, and with him will be Skinner, who is a tractor driver, Amory H. Waite, Jr., radio operator of Wollaston, Mass., and two others whose names haven't been announced as yet.

Every possible precaution is being taken. The tractor engines have been completely overhauled. The cab bodies I told you about previously have been reconstructed to make each tractor a self-contained traveling unit. Every mechanical detail has been checked and rechecked. The tractors are mechanically as perfect as human ingenuity and skill can make them. The extreme temperatures to which the machines will be subjected have introduced two problems, that of gasoline vaporization and lubrication. The gasoline tanks have been thoroughly washed and filled with the wonderful fuel Admiral Byrd selected for this greatest of automotive Polar expeditions. Each tractor has a capacity of 175 gallons of gasoline, carried in two tanks.

The radiators have been provided with covers and all openings in the engine compartments have been practically sealed in order to keep the carburetors and intake manifolds as warm as possible. The exhaust manifolds have been deflected so that they exhaust directly against the differential housing which will insure sufficient heat in the differential to provide a continuous circulation of oil. On each machine a special oil tank has been mounted in the engine compartment over the engine. A pipe runs from this tank to the crankcase. Heat from the engine keeps this oil warm at all times and when it becomes necessary to refurnish the oil in the crankcase the operator will only have to open a petcock and run in a sufficient quantity.

Here is one of the most interesting mechanical points of this trip. Two special gasoline stoves generating an extremely high heat are being taken along. When the engine stops for any reason whatever these stoves will be lighted immediately and placed underneath the engine and the differential. This trip is the first of its kind ever attempted and is both formidable and hazardous. I hope to tell you a lot more about it next week.

This is the beginning of a lot of exciting adventures in which I want all you club members to share. Get out your maps and mark this strange journey on it when I give you the details of it later. If you are not a member of the club, now is a swell time to join. It costs nothing. Simply send a clearly self-addressed, stamped envelope to me at the club's American headquarters and the staff there will send you entirely free, a beautiful big working map of Antarctica and a membership card. Address Arthur Abele, Jr., president, Little America Aviation and Exploration Club, Hotel Lexington, 48th Street and Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y.

CHARLES R. FENIMORE

Funeral services for Charles R. Fenimore, 75 years old, who died of heart trouble and hardening of the arteries at the home of his brother, G. W. Fenimore, in Bertrand early Sunday morning, were conducted at the Bertrand Methodists Episcopal church Monday afternoon by the Rev. Margraves. Burial was in the I. O. O. F. cemetery in Charleston.

Besides a brother, Mr. Fenimore is survived by another brother in Detroit, Mich., a sister in Los Angeles, Calif., and a second sister in Jackson. Dempster service.

WILLIAM A. BURNS

Funeral services for William A. Burns, who died following a heart attack at his home in Charleston Tuesday, were conducted at 9:00 o'clock Tuesday morning at St. Henry's Catholic church, the Rev. John Weiberg officiating. Burial was in Charleston.

Mr. Burns, who was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Burns, was born in Mississippi county, where he was a merchant and landowner. For approximately a year he had not been well. He was 57 years old.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Martin Burns, Clarksdale, Miss.; a brother, Ed Burns, Charleston; and two sisters, Miss Elizabeth Burns, Charleston, and Mrs. J. H. Edelen, St. Louis.

BLOOMFIELD POSTOFFICE CLERK HELD ON CHARGE OF ROBBING U. S. MAIL

A 23-year-old Bloomfield postoffice clerk, charged with stealing from the mails, was arraigned before an acting United States Commissioner in Poplar Bluff Wednesday morning and placed in the Butler County jail until he could file a bond for an appearance at the next term of the Federal court.

The youth, Ancil Lloyd Street, was arrested Tuesday morning by federal inspectors after he was said to have taken marked bills from two test letters and hidden them in his right shoe. He had been suspected for more than a year, ever since numerous letters, some containing money, had disappeared and complaints had been made to postoffice authorities.

Street admitted tampering with the mail, according to officers but stated that his total haul was less than $20 in cash.

If he is convicted, he may be sentenced to five years in a penitentiary or fined $5000, or given both.

SHOWERS BRING RELIEF

All crops benefited from moisture and from escape from excessive heat following showers which have fallen periodically over the district during the last three days. And although the immediate vicinity of Sikeston has not been greatly favored with rain, other sections, particularly in the east and south, have been immeasurably aided.

The rainfall broke the intense heat in which men, animals, and crops had been suffering and lowered thermometer readings which had risen in parts of the State to new highs. Last Friday, a new record was set in Columbia, with 111 degrees, and in St. Louis, with 110.

The whole State, however, still badly needs rain, since only scattered showers have fallen in many sections. The total rainfall for July has been the second lowest ever recorded, for it is only a little above the July, 1930, total, and the total for the last four months in only 8.62 inches, or 50 per cent of normal, according to Roscoe Nunn in his weekly weather and crop bulletin.

Probably eighty to ninety per cent of corn is without ears, and very little prospect of any ears forming, and about forty per cent is not making fodder. Much corn has been fed to stock or cut for silage.

Very little alfalfa is yielding a third cutting. Nearly all gardens, pastures and forage crops, are dried up. Potatoes are mostly poor, and some are rotting in the ground. Apples are badly damaged, sunburned, small, and many dropping. Forest trees are dying in places. Water shortage is very serious on many farms and in some villages.

All U. S. a Golf Course

From Boston a golf ball could be driven to New York with the energy of an averaged-sized car going 20 miles per hour; to Cincinnati, O., at 40 miles, and nearly to Pike's Peak in Colorado at 60 miles an hour. High speeds are potentially dangerous, and if drivers could simply realize what speeds mean, as illustrated above, and would control their rates of speed, accidents would not be as serious as they were in 1933 when 29,900 persons were killed and 850,700 were injured non-fattally.

GREATLY ALARMED

Partisan critics of the national administration's program, designed to overcome hard times, profess to be greatly alarmed about the large sum of money spent in financing emergency measures. They disregard the fact that much of the money placed in circulation as result of various relief measures is represented by loans that are amply secured and which will be repaid with interest.

An Associated Press dispatch published recently presented significant information. It summarized emergency expenditures in the last fiscal year, which totaled about four and a half billion dollars. Attention was called to the fact that half of it bore a return address.

That half which will eventually return to the treasury represents money loaned to farm and home owners, bank corporations, to aid them in meeting emergency situations. Federal credit projects in which two-thirds of the money advanced for building projects through the PWA are included in the category of disbursements that are secured by acceptable collateral.

The money distributed to farmers as farm benefits will be balanced, it is anticipated, by processing taxes levied on processors. So, when all these things are taken into consideration, the claims of those who attack the administration for partisan reasons are revealed as a dishonest distortion of facts. The treasury is not being obligated in excess of resources of the nation. Nor is the program of expenditures to relieve the distress of a citizenship, which has patiently borne the hardships of depression, based on profligate extravagance.—Clinton Co. (Ky.) Gazette.

AN APPEAL TO ALL VOTERS --- MEN and WOMEN

Being badly crippled, makes it impossible for me to call on you personally. It is a task for me to get up to and down from my office, but it does not take away from me the desire to be self-sustaining; to make my own living; to give a few nickels to children and to others in need; not to be a burden on my children, and, Blessed Be God, in my crippled condition, I have been able to raise a rather large and I think respectable family. I can attend to the duties of this office, for I hope I am not crippled in my head. I can make a living out of it, and want you help me to get it. In order to vote for either of us, H. A. Walton, W. S. Smith, Joe W. Myers or W. H. Carter, you MUST scratch one of our names. Only three of us can be nominated. I hope you can find it in your heart to leave my name on the ticket on August 7th. Won't you please do this and I will ever be grateful to you.

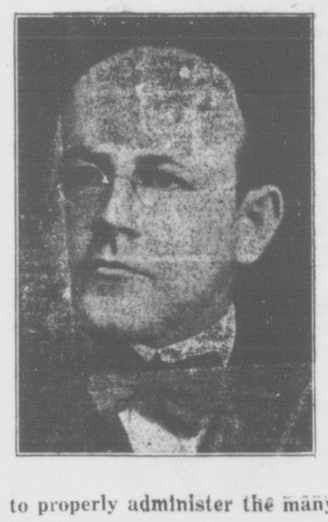
Respectfully submitted,

H. A. WALTON

Candidate for the Office of

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE

TO THE VOTERS



In order to properly administer the many duties imposed on the office of the county clerk and at the same time render courteous and efficient service, it requires a thorough knowledge as to the procedure of turning out the great volume of work made necessary in this office, and experience and efficiency must be seriously considered if the job is to be done as intended.

The new county budget law has just gone into effect but this law cannot be carried out in all its details without being familiar with the problems and functions of the county government and all its departments. Next year the Jones Law, which provides assessed tax valuations of farm lands in drainage districts shall be reduced by the amount of unpaid drainage tax, must be applied. This work will be rather technical and will require much time and a workable system. The county clerk's force, being familiar with all records concerned, can more readily see that the proper reductions are made. These increased duties, together with the already heavy duties, make it all the more important that EXPERIENCE AND EFFICIENCY be considered first.

CHAPTER VII

HOME FROM THE WAR

Don Felipe del Castillo handed a telegram to Madero. It read:

"Francisco Madero, liberator of Mexico. Dear friend, excuse me for the way I fight. I took Juraez today. Nobody killed much. Pancho Villa."

"Any word from Mexico City?" asked Madero.

General Pascal replied: "The abdication of Diaz is a matter of days, perhaps hours. There is not a Diaz regiment left."

"Deserted him. Fled when his star was setting," said Madero.

"It was an evil star."

"Yet they served it once. It is sad to be deserted."

"Victory is ours, Madero," said Pascal.

"I'm not thinking of victory but of Mexico."

Villa and his army were in a cafe in Juarez, celebrating their victory, drinking, laughing, making love. Pancho was in a booth, watching a girl doing a sensuous dance. Chavito was asleep in a fat woman's lap; Fierro was preening himself with the Politico's mirror in his hands. Johnny Sykes was perched on top of the booth singing to himself, in a fit of homesickness, "In the Good Old Summer Time."

Villa, scowling at Fierro, grabbed the girl when she had finished her dance, flung her on his lap and fell to kissing her shoulders. That was how Rosita, escorted into the cafe by two soldiers carrying a suitcase, found him.

"So this is the way you fight battles! This is what you do, eh? Carnago, Ojinga, Jiminez, Santa Rosalie! Hanging around the saloons!" She addressed the dancer: "Get out!"

"Who you talking to?" asked the girl with an insolent stare.

"Who do you think you are?"

"I'm his wife."

"It's a lie," protested Villa, blinking.

The girl shook him. "You just married me." She pointed to Johnny. "He married us."

"Come down here!" Rosita screamed at Johnny. "You done this, eh?"

"Hold your horses," said Johnny, dropping down from his perch. "I never saw the little lady before in my life."

"So this is the way you fight battles!" cried Rosita.

Rosita gave a triumphant shout. "You hear that! Get out!" She smacked the dancer's jaw, knocking her off Pancho's lap. Johnny started to bolt, but Pancho grabbed his leg.

"Hey, don't go away!"

"Court's adjourned," said Johnny, and bolted. Rosita pulled Pancho to his feet and started him across the crowded floor of the cafe, screaming in his ear.

"I capture Juarez today. We celebrate."

"All right, you capture! After this when you capture something, you celebrate with me, you pig-face!" She saw him exchange a sly, amorous glance with the dancer, now sitting on Fierro's lap, and banged her suitcase into Pancho's rear just as shouts of "Viva Villa!" burst out, and a soldier approached and announced:

"Colonel Villa, Francisco Madero has just arrived on the train."

Pancho turned on Rosita, placed his broad hand on her face and gave a shove which pushed her over backwards. "Go home! Fierro! Come quick! Madero is here!"

All the way to the station, Pancho and his friends had to fight their way through the crowds. Through a window of the station restaurant Pancho saw Don Felipe's sister, Teresa, at a table with some friends. He gave a yell, put his foot through the window, breaking the glass, and jumped through, followed by several of his Doradoes. He shouted gaily across the restaurant: "Hey! How do you do!"

"It's Pancho Villa!" Teresa said excitedly to her friends, jumped up and ran to meet him. "Oh, I'm so glad to see you! You haven't changed, despite all the great things you've done for Mexico. I always tell everybody how we met at the hacienda. Remember?"

Pancho beamed down upon her. "Sure! The rich and the poor are the same. Tonight everybody the same!"

"But I musn't keep you from Madero," she responded, quickly. "He's in the telegraph office. I wish you could get him to eat something."

Pancho called his aides, kicked in the glass front of the restaurant counter, and began emptying it of sandwiches, cake, pickle jars and everything else it contained. He piled them up on a tray and gave it to a girl to carry, while he continued to stuff his pockets with food, and called to Fierro to get some coffee for Mr. Madero. With a shout to Teresa not to go away, he left in search of Madero. He kicked open the door of the telegraph room. Madero, Don Felipe and General Pascal were standing behind the chair of the operator waiting for such news from Mexico City and the expected fall of Diaz as the key might click forth.

"Hello!" called Pancho, gently. "I got some sandwiches for you. How do you do?"

Pancho smiled Madero, with a happy smile. "I want to thank you for Juarez and Santa Rosalie."

"That's all right. Here's some cake."

We are waiting for news from Diaz. Only then did Pancho greet Don Felipe and General Pascal. As Madero sipped at the coffee which Fierro had poured for him, Pancho said softly in his ear seeking approbation:

"You hear I didn't shoot no prisoners at Juarez."

General Pascal overheard the low remark. "No, because you killed all who tried to surrender'" he said with an unpleasant laugh.

Pancho scowled at Pascal. "Oho. The General is a little mad because I took Juarez while he's sitting somewhere."

A clatter from the telegraph instruments cut off the angry retort forming on Pascal's lips. They waited in suspense while the operator took down the message and handed it to Madero who read it through, remained silent a moment and then said, gently: "Diaz has fallen. He abdicates. We are the rulers of Mexico."

Pancho beamed at Madero, went to the window and thrust his foot through, yelling to the crowd outside: "Viva Madero' President of Mexico'"

A Gringo shouldered his way through the rejoicing, unruly throng, shouting: "Hey' Pancho'"

"Johnny'" Pancho's big hand reached through the broken window and pulled Johnny Sykes into the telegraph room. "Madero's out there. You want to talk to him?"

"I ain't got time'" yelled Johnny above the tumult. "I got to get a wire open to New York. Step on it, operator. Get me the New York World."

"It's all right, do what Johnny says," Villa told the operator, and went in search of Madero.

Face to face again with his chief, in the restaurant from which the excited throng had been expelled at the cost of a completely wrecked room, Pancho heard Pascal saying:

"I agree with Your Excellency. Delay is useless. It's better to start for Mexico City at once."

Pancho, dazed with success, went over to Madero and took his arm affectionately. "I got my army. Take about an hour. I get 5,000 on that train."

"There is no need for an army," said General Pascal. "We are agreed that His Excellency must arrive in the capital not as a conquerer but as a friend. I'll go and give the order to start."

"Pancho," said Madero, "the battles are over. Your work is done. You must go back to peace. You must send your army to their homes."

Pancho stared unbelievingly at his friend, unaware of the arrival of Johnny Sykes in the room. "You mean you don't want me to come to Mexico City?"

"You can serve Mexico best by disbanding your army and returning to your home."

"You would be looked upon as a friend of bandits," said General Pascal. "The better elements would desert our cause."

"Aw, listen," pleaded Pancho. "You can't go without Pancho. He's your friend. He loves you. You gonna need somebody you can trust."

"I'll send for you if that time comes," said Madero. "Pancho, I know you better than to offer you rewards. Liberty is your reward. Liberty that your courage has won for your brothers. They will remember Pancho Villa and sing of him as long as there are minstrels left."

Pascal returned and announced that the train was ready to start.

Madero took Pancho by the arm. "You are better away from Mexico City, Pancho. These are my orders. Captain Lopez, I want these messages to go."

When Madero had left the room, Pancho backed General Pascal against the wall. "You go with him, eh? No army. Just you to protect him. All right, but remember this—if anything happens to the little fella that's your fault you'll see me again. Remember that."

Madero returned and, removing a ring, slipped it on the finger of Pancho. "Wear this for good luck and eternal friendship. Good-bye, Pancho. My heart thanks you for Camargo, Ojinaga, Juarez and for Mexico." He kissed the bandit leader on both checks. Pancho remained staring unseeingly at the ring until he heard Johnny Sykes saying: "Well, Pancho, you're the best copy I ever had. In behalf of my six million readers and my city editor, I thank you. Hey stop crying, will you?"

"I thought maybe I get loose from Rosita and me and you have some fun tonight," Villa muttered.

"Ah...Ah...You gotta go home. It's nine o'clock. So long, partner."

Simon Loebe of the Charleston Enterprise-Courier has got the goods on the Missourian Prtg. & Sta. Co., of Cape Girardeau, which is owned by the Naeter Bros., publishers of the Religious daily of that city. The Missourian has been cutting prices for printing below the Price Determination Schedule of the National Graphic Arts Code, and their representative was in Charleston last week soliciting business at prices not in line with the code and Loebe has proof of it, therefore has reported it to the U. S. District Attorney for action, which we for one, hope will be forthcoming. Good work Simon, we hope you make it stick and lay it on 'em good and strong, if you can. Their representative was here also last week, and we presume pursued the same tactics here, as we know it has heretofore been the Missourian's policy to print stuff much cheaper out in the territory than they do right in Cape Girardeau, despite the fact that the Naeter boys—Fred and George—once stated while in our office "that they never solicited any printing in a town where a printing office was located in this territory." There's hardly a printing shop in Southeast Missouri which has not felt the sting of unfair competition which the Missourian shop at Cape puts up, and why they should go out into the territory nad offer work at a price cheaper than they will turn it our for customers in Cape Girardeau we cannot see, unless it is because they hope to damage the printing shops located over the district. In the past other shops have been powerless to keep them from this unfair competition but with the Graphic Arts Code now in effect, a very suitable weapon for keeping them in line is at hand, and we hope they're turned up every time they're caught violating this law. —Malden Merit.

READ AND REFLECT

By Art L. Wallhausen

Since 1923 we've sort of missed what is commonly known as "home cookin' ".

Which is another way of saying that since that year eating has been a succession of public eating places.

And thereby hangs this part of the tale.

One begins to notice this, that and the other.

What is most noticeable is the apparent lack of realization on the part of many restaurant owners that their customers have a peculiar way of noticing things which after so long a time become commonplace to the owner and the hired help. Dust here and there; methods of handling foodstuffs; hands; silver; cracked dishes; and the kitchen itself.

Just as a matter of pleasant debate I wonder ofttimes how many restaurant girls and restaurant cooks and kitchen helpers could show a clean bill of health?

Or how many ever submitted to a physical examination, let alone one every six months.

Th same might be said of barber shops. Women have insisted and by insisting have gained their point, that operators who work on then be required by law to show proof of good health—or at least the absence of any one of a number of social diseases.

Men folks just take things for granted.

Here and there one will find an up-to-date shop, one where instruments are sterilized after each use; where powder brushes are not dropped on the floor and then swabbed around over the next victims's face. And where the same hot water towel is not used on a half dozen assorted faces.

But not often.—Poplar Bluff Republican.

So-o-o-o-o, he drew $2400 from the bank, pooled it with $1,200 which he had in a wallet, went to his farm, shot three horses, set fire to the barn, tossed the money and a deed to the farm into the flames. His clothing caught fire and he dived into a creek. Neighbors hauled him out. He is dead.

PRESIDING JUDGE

The Democratic voters next Tuesday should re-nominate John W. Heeb of near Chaffee, for Presiding Judge of the County Court. Since 1928, Judge Heeb has been instrumental in reducing the real estate valuations in Scott County for tax purposes, approximately 45%. He is a real dirt farmer and is sympathetic with the troubles farmers have been having.

The Budget Law is now being put in effect. New tax laws are taking effect next year when lands in drainage districts are to be assessed on a new basis and it is no time to change the Presiding Judge with these new laws coming in. Judge Heeb understands them and can best administer them. He has always been SAFE and DEPENDABLE. The County needs his services.

At the last monthly meeting held July 7, thirty-one insurance agents from Charleston, Dexter, Poplar Bluff, Caruthersville, and Cape Girardeau were present.

LIGHTNING BRIEFLY VISITS DR. T. C. McCLURE'S HOME

Although the maid, who was standing at the kitchen sink, was badly frightened, no damage resulted when a bolt of lightning struck wires at the home of Dr. T. C. McClure at 702 Park, early Monday evening, went down into the house, through the electric stove, and into the ground.

Firemen, hurrying to Dr. McCure's home, found no blaze. They turned off the light switch, inspected the wires, and turned it on again.

The stove was in a normal condition. The maid recovered her equanimity later.

DILLINGER'S NAME IS BASIS OF SUIT

Alleging his son jumped from a motor car and was fatally injured when the driver introduced himself as "John Dillinger," John Byrd filed suit last Tuesday asking damages of $10,000 from Boyd Pruiett and the Van Ausdell Motor Company, Hayti, which employs Pruiett as a salesman.

After picking up young Byrd near there several weeks ago, the petition alleges, Pruiett said he was "John Dillinger." The youth leaped from the car, suffering a fractured skull from which he died.

Arrow fits shirts to more than your figure

There are all kinds of male figures in the world . . . and Arrow makes shirts to fit most of them. There are also all kinds of pocketbooks—and Arrow Shirt prices fit most of them!

Want to spend around $2 for a shirt—and get lots for your money? Then let us show you TRUMP at $1.95, GORDON white at $2 . . . both shrewd shirt buys. For $2.50 we offer you the PADDOCK and at $3.50 the CLARIDGE. Both are true triumphs in the shirt-makers' art! And if you feel mildly extravagant there's that superb shirt—the BARONET—at $5.

But whatever price you pay for an Arrow Shirt, you'll get worlds of Arrow style and tailoring. And every Arrow Shirt is Sanforized-Shrunk. You get a new shirt if one ever shrinks. We're anxious to show you the whole family.

FELKER
For COLLECTOR

FELKER will give this important office his personal attention six days a week.

FELKER will see that Government Bonds are placed up for security behind every dollar of our school and county monies.

FELKER knows you 365 days a year, any place, any time, anywhere.

FELKER tries hard to be present with you at all entertainments in your community and it is always a real pleasure to be there among you.

FELKER has helped to stop speculation and if every voter in the county knew how he had represented the people instead of the selfish few, no five candidates would defeat him this year.

WHO FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR?

A number of my friends have asked me for my opinion about who we should vote for on August 7th, for nomination to the office of United States Senator. So far as I am personally cncerned, and in my judgment, so far as any ordinary voter is concerned, it makes very little difference as to who is nominated for United States Senator, for all three of the candidates are good, honest, intelligent citizens. It is only those who hope for some political preferment for themselves or their frineds, who should be interested in and be tearing their shirts for either of the candidates.

We have three Political Organizations in the State battling for National and State Patronage; one, Judge Truman, who has Boss Pendergast's and the State Administration behind him; another, Mr. Cochran, who has the St. Louis branch and "Sour Grapes" Charley behind him; and, yet another, J. L. (Tuck) Milligan, with Senator Clark and Ex-Senator Harry B. Hawes behind him, and who will be supposed to stand with them in the further distribution of Federal Patronage in Missouri. Take your choice. I don't like the idea of being bossed from St. Louis or Kansas City, for with these cities casting only 37½% of the Democratic vote and and Rural District casting 62½%, it looks too much like the tail wagging the dog. I think it was a mistake for Senator Clark to go out campaigning for "Tuck", so what am I to do? I look about and I see the State grudgingly gave us Steve Hunter, Tom Scott and Tom Dudley as sop to Russell Dearmont, which of course was very fine; fine, really fine, because of the quality, and fine because so very few. If Judge Truman wins we can kiss any further patronage for this section, goodbye. If Mr. Cochran wins, we can expect nothing further from this section. Mr. Clark gave us Harry Blanton, a new type of American manhood, the greatest honor ever coming to a Democrat from this section of the State; besides, numerous, splendid and deserving Postmasters. Think Senator Clark made a mistake in getting actively into the campaign, but "Tuck" Milligan is the one chance we have in getting a Senator from Rural Missouri, which we have not had since the Hon. W. Joel Stone. In my judgment it is our opportunity to show the State at large that we appreciate what Senator Clark did for us in real recognition of Southeast Missouri, the Gibraltar of Missouri, Democracy. I aim to vote for J. L. "Tuck" Milligan, and would like to see those of my friends, who are not "sot" in their ideas do the same.

Respectfully submitted,

M. G. GRESHAM

Vote For
J. L. (Tuck) Milligan
For Senator

J. L. (Tuck) Milligan is the only Country Candidate for United States Senator. He is forty-five years old and has been a member of Congress from Ray County for thirteen years. He is the only candidate for Senator who is not backed by a city political machine. He has constantly supported the policies of President Roosevelt and he has voted for, and fought for, farm relief. His experience qualifies him for the place. He has a high standing in the Congress of the United States. He favors relief for disabled veterans. He was a Captain in the World War. He was Democratic Whip of the House under Speaker Garner. Help elect a rural Democrat to the United States Senate.

SIKESTON GOLFERS WON EIGHTH GAME, LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP SUNDAY

By winning the eighth and final match of the Southeast Missouri league at Poplar Bluff Sunday the undefeated Sikeston club golfers captured the league championship for the second consecutive year. Sunday's game score was 49 to 24.

Unlike last year, when Sikeston had to play off a tie with Poplar Bluff for the championship, the local golfers had no close competition in the league during the whole season.

With twenty-seven golfers, Sikeston outplayed Poplar Bluff men on their own grounds, eleven of them shooting a score of 80 or less.

John Phillips of Poplar Bluff had the low game score of 71, but Orville Lumsden and Bill Malone were on his heels with 72's. Geo. Kirk and Hester Alexander were just one stroke behind with 73's, and Sonny Lee and Pete Medley followed with 74's, making a total of six Sikeston golfers who shot the Poplar Bluff course under 75.

On Sunday Sikeston will meet members of the Cape Girardeau golf club, many of whom are excellent players, on the grounds here.

KAYACKS LAUNCHED ON DRAINAGE DITCH

The three Eskimo Kayacks made by members of the Sikeston Sea Scout group were launched Sunday morning on the St. John's drainage ditch near McMullin and paddled five miles to the Reiss dairy farm, where the water tourists landed and returned home for the noon meal. The three builders of the boats, John F. Wood, Jr., Charles Yanson and Franklin Struwe, made the trip in two hours and thirty-five minutes.

During the afternoon the three and their companions set out again, going to the Wolf Hole bridge and paddling nine miles to Matthews in three hours and forty-five minutes. The boats easily held 540 pounds of weight, standing six inches from the water even when they were heavily loaded.

Members of the party, besides the three Sea Scouts, were V. L. Bowles, skipper of the group, Louise Wood and Dorothy Eldridge.

Soon, according to Mr. Wood, the boats will be placed in the Natatorium here for exhibition.

ILLMO YOUTH DROWNED WHILE SWIMMING SUNDAY

Orville Eifert, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eifert, of near Illmo, was drowned as he swam in a diversion channel five miles south of Cape Girardeau, Sunday afternoon.

Friends of the youth, who was a good swimmer, thought he was seized with cramps.

Even though several companions dived for his body, which sank in water sixteen feet deep, it was not recovered until two hours after Eifert drowned.

As he swam with friends, Jess Bailey, Omer and Granstead Hagen, and Joe and Paul Springer, all of Illmo, the youth went under. The companions did not think he was in need, however, until they heard him call for help before he sank again.

After the body was recovered by a fisherman at 5 o'clock in the afternon, it was taken to Illmo. Funeral services were held in St. Louis Wednesday.

Besides his parents, young Eifert, who was a student at the Illmo high school, is survived by three brothers, Richard and Eugene Eifert, both of Illmo, and Julius Eifert, St. Louis; and three sisters, Miss Verneal Eifert, Illmo, and Mrs. Linda Diebold and Miss Martha Eifert, both of St. Louis.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS

On next Tuesday, you will nominate the Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator. Who will it be? Three men are asking for the Democratic nomination—Judge Truman of Kansas City, John J. Cochran of St. Louis and J. L. "Tuck" Milligan of Ray County. Two from the large cities and one from the country. St. Louis now has a hold-over U. S. Senator, a Democrat. There are four places to be filled on the Democratic Ticket in Missouri this year: A U. S. Senator, two Supreme Judges, and a State Superintendent of Schools and two men have announced for the Supreme Judgeships—John J. Fitzsimmons of St. Louis and Chas. A. Leedy, Jr., of Kansas City, hence both will be on the Ticket. As to the Superintendent of Schools, the Kansas City Machine is supporting L. W. King. If Mr. King is successful, three places on the Democratic Ticket will be named by the St. Louis and Kansas City Democratic Machines, and if they are successful in nominating either Judge Truman or John J. Cochran, they will have selected all four places on the Ticket. St. Louis and Kansas City cast 37½ pr cent of the Democratic votes at the last General Election. The County Democrats cast 62½ per cent of the Democratic votes at the last General Election. This being a fact, are not the Country Democrats entitled to at least one place on the Ticket? Not since the days of the illustrious Senator Stone, have the Country Democrats had a U. S. Senator. J. L. "Tuck" Milligan is from Richmond, Ray County, therefore is a Country Democrat and he is the only chance the Country Democrats have in getting representation on the State Ticket. Justice and fairness and for the good of the Democratic Party, calls for and demands that Milligan be the nominee.

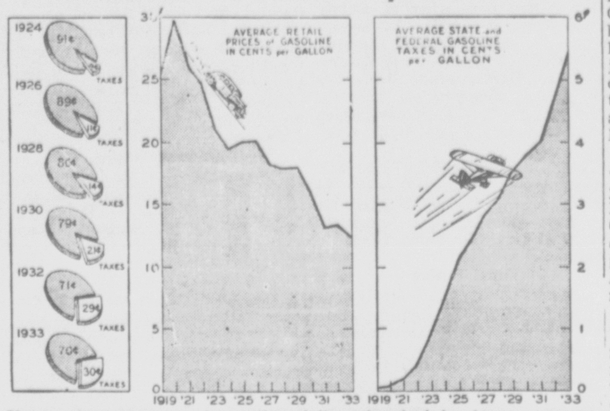
Tax Increases Fuel Cost Four Times As Much As Code Prices, Federal Trade Report Reveals



Charts show amount of gasoline dollar absorbed by taxes; average yearly retail prices of gasoline in 50 cities; and average yearly state and federal gasoline taxes.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — State and federal taxes have increased the cost of gasoline to the consumer more than four times as much as have price advances under the NRA, the Federal Trade Commission has informed the United States Senate.

Replying to a Senate inquiry as to what increased gasoline prices mean to consumers in the way of additional costs, the Commission reported that while prices advanced 2c per gallon under the Oil Code between July 1, 1933 and January 31, 1934, subsequent price declines made the average net increase only about 1c per gallon.

The increase in cost to consumers was placed at $160,000,000 annually as compared with state and federal taxes averaging 5.14c per gallon and costing $700,000,000 annually.

The Commission explained that the Consumers' Advisory Board had estimated the increased cost to consumers due to price advances at $644,000,000.

The report disclosed that while the average estimated increase in cost to consumers in all states was only 1.04c per gallon between July 1, 1933 and January 31, 1934, the average state and federal tax paid by the consumer increased from zero at the beginning of 1919 to more than 5c per gallon on February 1, 1934.

Quoting gasoline prices through the years, the Commission presented data from 50 representative cities indicating that while the average cost of gasoline to the consumer declined 27 per cent between July 1, 1926 and July 1, 1933, taxes increased about 134 per cent.

PLAN FOR CONSTRUCTION OF REST ROOMS FORMED

A move, instigated last week, for contstruction of public restrooms for men and women has met with the hearty approval of Sikeston civic leaders.

Together they are discussing possible schemes, and on Monday evening C. L. Blanton, Sr., will speak in behalf of the proposal at the regular monthly meeting of the City Council. Meanwhile, a plan which is considered very feasible, has been formed.

Since the ceiling of the boiler room, in the rear of the City Hall, is high, a space directly above it on the first floor of the building could easily be converted into a women's rest room, according to John A. Young.

Allowing a sufficient ceiling height for the boiler room, he thinks, workmen could construct a restroom which would be situated about three feet above the level of the City Hall's first floor. Several stairs would lead into the room, which would be flanked by toilets and lavatories.

In the main part of the room, however, would be placed inexpensive divans and chairs, in which women could relax, and along the walls would be hung mirrors. The room would be supervised by a negro maid.

To provide space for a men's rest room, Mr. Young said, the present small private men's and women's bath rooms in the west rear part of the first floor of the City Hall and the short narrow hallway which divides them and leads out into a vacant lot adjoining the building would all be combined into one room with entrances from the outside as well as from the interior of the City Hall.

At the time the filtration plant was built at the waterworks a year and a half ago, according to Mr. Young, members of the City Council and other city officials considered the construction of public rest rooms, which have long been considered increasingly necessary.

With J. A. Sutterfield, Mr. Young formed a plan and estimate of the cost of building rest rooms, but when it was learned that the filtration plant was to cost $5000, further expenses at the time were thought prohibitive. They were made even more so by the fact that the plant was finally built at a total cost of $18,000.

Labor for the construction of the rest rooms now could, it is believed, be furnished from the ranks of men who will be on a federal government relief roll, similar to the CWA, which is planned for this winter. Materials for the project, however, would have to be furnished by the city.

The problem of securing money for the purchase of necessary materials is not so easily solved perhaps. Only this week Attroney General Roy McKittrick ruled that a third class city may, by a city ordinance, transfer surplus earnings of a municipal water system to other municipal uses providing the transfer does not endanger the ability of the city to meet interest and principal payments on any bonds outstanding against the plant.

The Sikeston water plant ordinarily little more than breaks even on its revenue since whenever an adequate surplus is accumulated outstanding bonds are brought in. This year two have been purchased, one in January and another in June. The water plant's surplus, however, would probably be sufficient to pay for materials for the construction of the rest rooms, it is thought.

Since the water plant surplus earnings may be diverted, many believe that those from municipal light plants might be transferred as well. The board of public works members have been using the light plant surplus to bring in

By BARBARA BROOKS

WHEN there are so many different kinds of bread that are easily and economically prepared right at home, it really seems a shame not to treat ourselves and our families to a little variety in the "staff of life."

The various bran breads will meet a hearty reception in practically every home. Furthermore, in serving them the housewife has the satisfaction of knowing that she is following the dictates of good health as well as appealing to the palate. Bran is one of the most valuable of the "bulk" foods, and sufficient "bulk" in our diets is something we require if we are to keep our systems in good running order.

Bran Fig Honey Bread

1 egg
¼ cup brown sugar
⅓ cup honey
1 tablespoon melted shortening
1 cup bran
2½ cups flour
¾ teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped pecans
1 cup chopped figs
1½ cups milk

Beat egg, add sugar, honey and melted shortening. Mix well. Add bran. Sift flour with soda, baking powder and salt. Add pecans and figs to flour mixture. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk. Bake in greased loaf tin in a moderate oven (375° F.) for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Provides 1 large loaf.

Bran Prune Bread

1 cup bran
1 cup sour milk

½ cup prunes (soaked several hours, stoned, drained and chopped)
1 tablespoon molasses
½ cup sugar
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix together the bran, sour milk, prunes and molasses. Add the sugar, then the flour which has been sifted with the soda, baking powder and salt. Put the batter into a greased can. Cover tightly and steam for 3 hours.

Yield: 1 loaf. 8 servings.

bonds when they are able to purchase them. By now they have secure $37,000 worth from bondholders and are holding $2500 worth from the city, including all the bonds due in 1935, all except two due in 1936, and all except three due in 1937. The last of the bonds, which totaled $150,000, are not due until 1950.

Further, according to members of the board, the city has been furnished with free lighting and pumping for two years, a service which would have returned a considerable amount of revenue, and customers were not long ago given a month's free lighting. If it were necessary, however, funds from the light plant's revenue could probably be used to make possible the realization of two public rest rooms.

BAPTIST LADIES URGE OCTAGON SOAP PURCHASE

For the past several months the W. M. U. of the local Baptist church has been sponsoring a drive on the sale of Octagon soap, inasmuch as the company which makes this brand of laundry soap has entered into a contract with the Baptist churches to give them a certain per cent on every bar sold, which money goes into the funds to help save the Old Folks Home at Ironton. Co-operation along this line from local housewives has not been the best, and again the members of the W. M. U. urge that especially the Baptist ladies do their part toward the salvation of this great institution by buying this special brand of soap.

There are times when we wish some peckerwood with fifty thousand dollars would come along and take The Standard off our hands and run the paper to suit everybody. If you print some things and make them as mild as possible you still offend some, and if you would print the story as it happened and quote your informant, then there would be hell to pay.

We would dislike very much to print anything in these columns that would be unseemly, but if Divine Providence, or something else, could remove Huey Long to some remote place forever, a good deed would be done, as he has been a pain in the neck to the public since he emerged from the swamps and came into the lime light.

Some queer things happen these days. Around the Malone Park are eight householders or residents who are not hooked up with the Municipal Light Plant and still a call is made for more light for adjoining streets and Park. Each of these citizens owe it to the city to hook up with the home plant who is lighting the streets for nothing.

We were very glad to hear Mr. Truman in his speech Wednesday evening, say that if either of his opponents were the Senatorial nominee that he would take the stump and do what he could to elect them. This is the right spirit.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Comer and children, Miss Mary Louise Arnett and Mrs. Maudie Wicks spent the week-end in St. Louis visiting Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Duncan.

On last Sunday, we closed our dedication and cornerstone laying of our church in Sunset Addition. We had a glorious session which lasted from Thursday night until Sunday at 5:30 o'clock. Refreshments were served by Sisters Roach, McGee, Porter, Seals, Bynum and Johnson.

This was one of the greatest events which ever occurred in our city. The pastor, the Rev. S. D. Woods, spared no pains making things pleasant for all.

Sunday morning at 11:30, the Rev. W. T. Macklin preached the sermon for the cornerstone laying; at 3 p. m., a wonderful paper was read by Miss Willie May Johnson at 3:30, the pastor of the white Baptsit church preached a sermon that stirred the hearts of everyone who heard him. He is a wonderful preacher. After having been introduced by Dr. Woods, the pastor, cheers went up for him by the whole house. After the sermon, Prof. N. C. Burns was presented. He made a wonderful talk, giving out information concerning the sacrificial work the pastor and members have done to make this great church a success. The cornerstone was laid by three Masons from Cape Girardeau, Morley and Sikeston, the Rev. Arthur officiating. Eastern Star members from the above named places also participated.

This church, St. John M. B. C., was built by its members and pastor without any soliciting aid and less than $275 is needed to clear us from debt. Now we ask the public please to help raise this amount.

We have two women who are authorized to beg financial aid to finish paying what we owe a lumber company. We hope they will be successful since we have gone as far as we can to pay the balance.

We thank the following named persons for what they have given, also those who have promised to give when called upon by our solicitors:

C. L. Blanton, $5; Elmos Taylor, $1; H. J. Welsh, $1.25; Hubert Boyer, $3; C. C. White, $2; T. F. Henry, $5.

—Dr. S. D. WOODS, Pastor

JOHN YOUNG APPOINTED COUNTY COURT JUDGE TO FILL McMULLIN'S TERM

Governor Guy B. Park announced Thursday the appointment of John A. Young as judge of the first district to the Scott County Court to fill the unexpired term of Leonard McMullin, who resigned Wednesday.

Mr. Young, who is now a candidate for the Democratic nomination for judge of the County Court from the first district, subject to the primary election Tuesday, will probably be sworn into office before September 1.

Judge McMullin's resignation becomes effective August 10, but since affairs of the court in which he is particularly interested will not be terminated until sometime this month, he will continue to execute his duties during at least the first part of the August term.

Because additional business at the E. P. Coleman & Company gin required all of his attention, Judge McMullin, superintendent of the plant, altered his decision to resign as county court judge this fall and telegramed a resignation to Jefferson City, Wednesday.

Soon after his move, members of the Scott County Democratic Central Committee, which is headed by Ray B. Lucas of Benton, wired Governor Park recommending Mr. Young to succeed the resigned judge, and in a telephone conversation Wednesday night with Tom Scott, formerly deputy warden at the State penitentiary and a close friend of Missouri's chief executive, the Governor stated that Mr. Young would be appointed, adding that official confirmation of his act would arrive here the following morning

.Lr..Fas etaoin shrdlu

At 10:57 o'clock Thursday morning, a telegram signed by the governor and stating, "John A. Young appointed Judge first district Scott County, Missouri, to succeed Leonard McMullin, resigned", was received at The Standard office.

Mr. Young has long been identified with civic enterprises here. Most recently, as a member of the county committee which directed relief activities in Scott County, and as the city chairman of the CWA and all other relief setups, he has untiringly given his servcies free for the aid of indigent families.

He was president of the Chamber of Commerce at the time the International Shoe Factory was brought here, and during the seven years he served as a City councilman, the Sikeston streets were paved and the City Hall and waterworks plant were built.

Mr. Young has worked diligently and cheerfully on all committees directing activities and civic entertainments which brought glory and praise to Sikeston, and his ideas and energy have been instrumental in the growth and betterment of the city.

A resident of Sikeston for thirty years, Mr. Young was a long time president of the Sikeston Concrete, Tile & Construction Co., and in that position constructed 500 houses in the town.

Because of these achievements and because of his recognized ability, his appointment to fill the unexpired term of Judge McMullin has been enthusiastically endorsed by people throughout the county.

MELON YIELD SMALLER, PRICE HIGHER THAN IN '33

The shipping of watermelons over the Missouri Pacific railroad here continues at a level which was established last week when Scott County farmers first brought their melons to town and began to load them.

By Wednesday morning a total of fifty-four cars had been sent over the railway to St. Louis, more than twice as many were routed from here at the same time last week

Growers who are bringing their produce here, state that their yield this year is less than half of the 1933 crop. One, for example, obtained only twelve carsload from a fifty-acre tract this summer, while last year he was able to harvest thirty cars. The price is so much higher than it was in 1933, however, that growers are able to make approximately the same amount of money on their reduced yield this year as they did last.

Loaders have included H. K. Ayloob, J. L. DeWitt, J. F. Cox, Leonard McMullin, W. G. Hastings, J. R. Frye, J. B. Bailey and Ed Smoot

In Mississippi County, the number of carloads shipped will miss last year's mark of 930 cars by about 300 or 400. The average price for the more than 300 cars already sent has been $160 a car. The top was $200.

NEW YORK DEALER CONVICTED OF CUTTING AUTO CODE PRICE

New York, August 1.– Gordon S. Harris, an automobile dealer was convicted in General Sessions Court today on a charge of violating the motor vehicle retail code. It was the first code conviction under the New York State law.

Harris, who lives in Ridgewood, N. J., and maintains offices in New York, was remanded to the Tombs prison for sentencing next Tuesday. He was ordered held to enable District Attorney Williams C. Dodge to investigate evidence of forgery adduced during the trial. The penalty for violation of the motor retail code is a $500 fine.

Harris was charged with having sold to Howard A. Boyd, code investigator, a new automobile for $50 under the list price. There were two counts in the complaint, one that Harris had offered to sell, the other that he actually had made the sale.

The defendant's case was based on his contention that he had turned the transaction over to another automobile salesman, William S. Willis, part-time employe of a Haledon (N. J.) agency He had done this, he testified, after he had learned that Boyd was an investigator.

Harris had Willis deliver the car to Boyd last February 5. At that time, several papers covering the transaction, were signed, one of them being a receipt for the machine.

The prosecution, thru the testimony of a handwriting expert, attempted to show that on the receipt, the name of Harris as the seller had been erased, and Willis' name substituted. The testimony of the handwriting expert, who asserted that several of the papers covering the sale had been altered, caused Chief Justice Frederic Kernochan to order Harris remanded for further investigation.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wimberley, a son, Tuesday.

T. H. Simpson and Mrs. M. M. Beck and daughter, Miss Ann, will leave today (Friday) for St. Louis. From that city Mr. Simpson will go to Centralia, Mo., to visit his granddaughter, Mrs R. E. Ausmus and family. Mrs. Beck and Miss Ann will return to Sikeston Saturday.

Mrs. N. R. Stroup of Cincinnati, Ohio, is expected Sunday for a visit with her cousin, Mrs. H. C. Young and family.

OILERS TAKE FIRST GAME OF CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

The Simpson Oilers defeated he the first close, lively game of the first close, livley game of the muny league championship which was played Tuesday afternoon at the baseball park here.

The Oilers managed to chalk up three runs in the first inning, a score which was equaled by their opponents by the end of the third. In the fourth, Potashnick players took two more runs, their last, while Simpson got three and two more in the fifth.

The game was featured by a home run by R. Bandy in the fifth inning, a double play in the second, and three-base hits by Limbaugh in the second and by Jones in the fourth.

Sells pitched for the winners and Sutton caught; while Dace, Law and Kindred pitched for Potashnick and Limbaugh caught.

The series, consisting of five games, the champion to win at least three, is being played on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The matches are attracting widespread interest because of the close rivalry between the two teams. Admission at the gate is 10 cents a person

The following play by play account of Tuesday's game was written by Leo Smith:

First Inning

Potashnick—Dace hit to Lancaster. Payne reached 1st base on Lancaster's error and stole 2nd base. Kindred hit to Sells. A Swaim hit to Jones. No runs. No hits. 1 error.

Simpson—Lancaster hit to Law. Mow struck out. H. Bandy reached 1st base on Weideman's error. Sutton singled through 3rd base and went to 2nd base on Weideman's error. Sells singled over short, scoring H. Bandy. R. Bandy doubled over 3rd base, scoring Sutton and Sells. Stacy hit to Swaim. 3 runs. 3 hits. 2 errors.

Second Iinning

Potashnick—L. D. Weideman reached first base when H. Bandy dropped his fly ball. Limbaugh tripled to deep center, scoring Weideman. S. Hudson popped out to Sells. Hart reached first base when Mow dropped his fly ball. Law rolled out to Lancaster. Dace hit to R. Bandy. 1 run, 1 hit, 2 errors.

Simpson—Cox singled over 2nd base. Jones popped out to Swaim and Cox was doubled off 1st base—double play. Lancaster hit to Swaim. No runs, 1 hit. no errors.

Third Inning

Potashnick—Payne walked and scored on Sutton's error. Kindred singled through 2nd base. A. Swaim struck out. L. D. Weideman singled, scoring Kindred. Limbaugh reached 1st base on Lancaster's error. S. Hudson popped out to Stacy. Hart flied out to H. Bandy in right field. 2 runs, 2 hits, 2 errors.

Simpson—Mow hit to L. D. Weideman. H. Bandy walked. Sutton hit to L. D. Weideman, sending H. Bandy to 2nd base. Sells flied out to Payne in left field. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning

COCHRAN

ROOSEVELT'S FRIEND AND HELPER

SEND HIM to the SENATE

"The Man Who gets Things Done"

Congressman JOHN J. COCHRAN

"I cannot close this campaign without mentioning the women and children of the farm, whose privations and hardships during recent years have been little short of pitiful. And I want the farm women of Missouri and the country to now that if I am elected to the Senate, God helping me, I will do what I can to the end that the good work which the Roosevelt administration has begun in the farmer's interest, shall be carried forward with increasing determination until the people of the farm shall once more be able to pay their debts and to have their just share of the blessings of life."

Congressman JOHN J. COCHRAN

WORK and VOTE for COCHRAN

Democratic Candidate U. S. Senator

On primary day, Tuesday, August 7, you, Mr. Voter, will select the man to represent you in Washington for the next six years. In this period of the nation's distress, men are needed in the Congress who will, effectively follow the President's leadership. Congressman Cochran—with 21 years' official activity as congressman and legislative secretary in Washington—is especially equipped for the job. He speaks for the distressed farmer as forcefully as for the unemployed city man. Missouri leaders of national thought are for him.

NATIONAL LEADERS SPEAK FOR COCHRAN

JAMES A. FARLEY

Postmaster General, member of President Roosevelt's cabinet, warm personal friend and political adviser of the President.

Upon the occasion of the laying of the cornerstone of the new Federal Building in St. Louis, Mr. Farley said:

"His interests are not bounded by city and state lines. He has always placed his country's good above his personal friendships and his personal advantages. Foremost in the fight for the people's rights, he is loved by all who are aligned with him in this battle and respected and feared by those who are not. I refer to the Hon. John J. Cochran, your Representative in Congress, of whom you may well be proud."

CHAS. M. HAY

City Counselor of St. Louis, Democratic Senatorial nominee in 1928.

"I was for Congressman Cochran when he first announced but I am stronger for him now than ever. I felt then, as I feel now, that his native ability, his long and varied experience in Washington and his perfect genius for getting things done, make him, by all odds, the best fitted man for the Senate in the race.

"I have been asked whether the organization Democrats of St. Louis are for him. I said "yes" but he would carry St. Louis if every organization Democrat were against him because the people are for him. Cochran has been the people's friend and they have made him their candidate."

WILLIAM HIRTH

President Missouri Farmers' Association, Editor Missouri Farmer.

"I am for Cochran . . . . . In their opening addresses both opponents of Cochran implied that the farmer's troubles are largely over, while Cochran pointed out that the NRA codes have largely wiped out the advance in farm prices, and that he is in FAVOR OF TAKING MORE AGGRESSIVE STEPS, and thus he has come closer to sizing up the real farm situation than have these self-styled "dirt farmers."

"From information I have received from different parts of the state, I believe the contest lays between Cochran and Truman, and voters should take this fact into account.- - - If I am correct in the latter belief, then it is up to the farm men and women of Missouri to decide between the plain-spoken Cochran, who is his own boss, or Judge Truman, who is the choice of Pendergast of Kansas City."

J. W. ALEXANDER

Secretary of Commerce in President Wilson's cabinet, former Congressman, intimate political and personal friend of the late United States Senator William Joel Stone, Champ Clark and Gov. A. M. Dockery.

To Congressman Cochran:

"In view of your long and able service in the House and knowledge of the responsibility confronting the Democratic party and your fitness for the solution of these problems I highly endorse your candidacy for the nomination. You are free from all factional and political alliance in the party that would handicap you in the very responsible work with which you will be charged. The Democracy should give your candidacy their very thoughtful consideration, naming you as the party nominee."

OUT-OF-TOWN PRINTER!

Every week there are traveling around so-called peddlers with various kinds of merchandise. Among these are printing salesmen. If you are figuring on some printing, no matter how large or small in amount, you owe it to yourself to investigate a bit.

It's a Slap in the Face to Local Labor

Many printers maintain homes and support families in our community. Business has been scarce enough when divided among local printers. Why give the work to strangers?

Who Pays the Taxes In Our City?

Is it the local printer, publisher or the out of town printer? The out of town printer has no local investment and wants none.

As To Guarantee

Your local printer is always here, should an adjustment be necessary, while you might have a little trouble finding the out of town printer to get his guarantee fulfilled. It will pay you to consult your local printer before purchasing printing of any kind.

The Twice-A-Week Sikeston Standard

Has always met competitive bids and everyone will tell you that you get your work when you want it and it really has a guarantee.

MONUMENTS IN OLD CHURCH CEMETERY RECALL EARLY HISTORY OF COUNTRY

CHRIST Church Burial Ground, historic cemetery in the heart of Philadelphia's wholesale and warehouse district, resting place of Benjamin Franklin and four others who signed the Declaration of Independence, is being restored.

Under the direction of the Rev. Louis C. Washburn, rector of Christ Church, and Harvey Mertz, sexton, graves lost for half a century are being located, marble monuments and vaults, some of them more than two hundred years old, are being replaced in their original positions, and the entire plot is being made into a place of beauty consonant with its historic associations.

Founded in 1719, seventy years before Washington became President and a year after the death of William Penn, the little cemetery became the last resting place of some of the most prominent citizens of colonial days. There in one corner lie Franklin and his wife, Deborah, in a marble tomb, the construction of which Franklin himself supervised. There also are Benjamin Rush, Francis Hopkinson, George Ross and Joseph Hewes, all signers of the Declaration of Independence; Peyton Randolph, president of the First Continental Congress; Michael Hillegas, first treasurer of the United States; William Tilghman, chief justice of Pennsylvania, and many another whose works had a lasting effect upon our country.

As the years went by the little houses that lined the streets of Penn's pioneer village gave way to business buildings and, as the city grew and business moved westward, these in turn became industrial buildings and warehouses. But the little burial ground, now surrounded by a tall brick wall, remained intact.

In the scores of years that have elapsed since most of the burials took place, many who were buried there were forgotten. Tombs and headstones, neglected, sank beneath the ground.

Guided by a record made in 1865, Mr. Mertz has uncovered more than a dozen markers that had been completely covered with earth and ivy vines. Only the other day he found the headstone that had marked the grave of Joseph, son of Charles Willing, the first mayor of Philadelphia, who passed away in 1750.

Incidentally, Mr. Mertz would like to learn something of J. Gullen, one of the early stone carvers whose name is inscribed on several of the memorials in the cemetery. Mr. Mertz estimates that his work was done about 1812. Several monuments bear the characteristic marks of his chisel even though they do not bear his name.

Will Stanfield of near Canalou is here visiting his nephew, Chas. Lumsden and family, and sister, Mrs. Sarah Lumsden.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Englehart have returned from Chicago, where they have been visiting the Century of Progress Exposition. They reported an enjoyable trip.

MALARIA

Speedy Relief of Chills and Fever

Don't let Malaria tear you apart with its racking chills and burning fever. Trust to no home-made or mere makeshift remedies. Take the medicine prepared especially for Malaria—Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic gives real relief from Malaria because it's a scientific combination of tasteless quinine and tonic iron. The quinine kills the Malarial infection in the blood. The iron builds up the system and helps fortify against further attack. At the first sign of any attack of Malaria take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. Better still take it regularly during the Malaria season to ward off the disease. Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic is absolutely harmless and tastes good.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic now comes in two sizes, 50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2½ times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money. Get a bottle today at any store

NAZARENE EVANGELIST TO BE HERE AUGUST 12

Dr. A. S. London, general Sunday school Evangelist of the Church of the Nazarene, will be here Sunday, August 12, to speak at three services which will be held at the Sikeston Nazarene church.

During the morning he will talk first at the Sunday school session at 9:30 o'clock and then at the morning church services at 11 o'clock.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon he will preach at a zone rally in which fifteen Nazarene churches of this territory will participate. Men and women are expected to come here from Poplar Bluff, Oxley, Dexter, Bernie, Malden, Carruthersville, Charleston, Cape Girardeau, Bell City, Dequilla, Bloomfield, Holcomb and Morehouse, to attend the meeting, which will be augmented by special music.

Dr. London, an evangelist of national prominence, has traveled through forty states during the course of a work which he has conducted for numerous years. He is the author of four books, and over a period of twenty years he has served as president of three Nazarene colleges in different parts of the United States.

When he comes here, Dr. London will be accompanied by his wife and daughter.

Girls! you'll want a pair of these smart NEW OXFORDS

My, but the new Poll Parrot styles are simply stunning, and they're wonderfully fitting, scientifically designed shoes — good for growing feet. Made of all-leather for long wear and the modest prices for such fine quality ... also in from worthy of consideration.

$1.95 to $2.95
